Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

Days may come
Days may go
But still the light of mem'ry weaves
Those gentle dreams
Of long ago.

Thirteen years ago, 530 little squires and damsels set out on a quest for knowledge. Five years of tough training by loving parents had prepared us for the battles ahead. Although still vulnerable, we were high in spirit. Specially armed — lunch boxes and backpacks — our gear aided us along the way. We were ready to conquer the world.

We experienced ten years of cuts, bruises and abrasions. Teachers taught us mathematical maneuvers and varied sentence patterns — a winning combination. We had learned the necessary skills to accept the final challenge — CHS!

Our greatest feat has been graduation from Chelmsford High School. Our journey here was grueling, but our arrival enchanting. In our quest for perfectibility, we learned about the decency of mankind; might for right, right for right, and justice for all. We have become invincible, climbing walls that no one else can climb, impossible deeds our daily fare. Our quest has endowed us with wisdom and courage.

Now it is time to set down the memories of our enchanted journey in The 1988 Lion. Let sorcery cast its spell, let the magic unfold, as we travel back in time, to our past, to the year 1988 A.D.

here Chivalry Is King

On May 9, 1987, the knights in their shining armor appeared with their ladies on their arms. They gathered for a celebration to commemorate the accomplishments and strengths of the Class of 1988.

With all the ceremony of a royal court, the atmosphere was paradise — almost paradise. One chamber was decorated as a tropical Caribbean Island; the other chamber detailed a midnight blue sky, adorned with the silvery glitter of the stars above.

The charming knights whirled their elegant ladies to the enamored music of a Kiss 108 disc jockey. The couples sat down to a feast fit for a king. Endlessly-filled tables of fruits and desserts topped off the scrumptious meal.

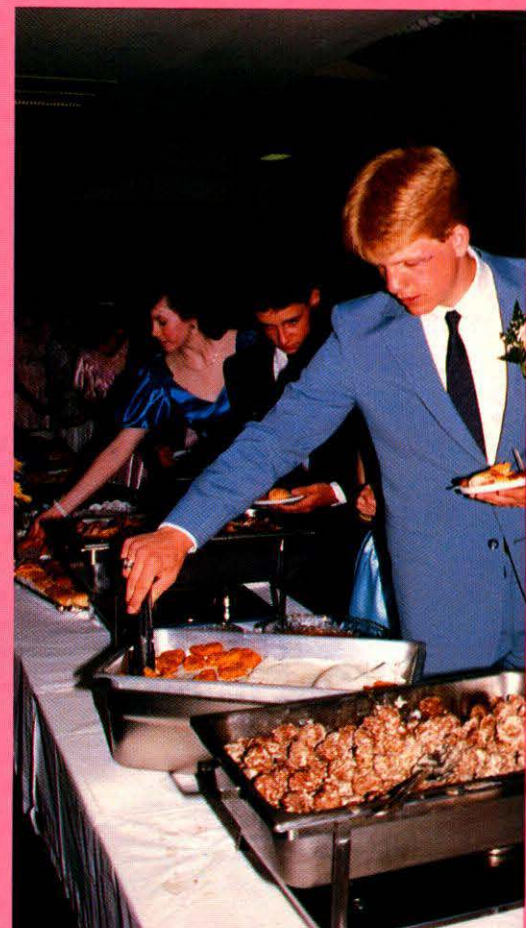

This night was filled with a special laughter, one that expressed unending friendship. This night we proved to be tried and true — we were an entire class sharing a single soul. Tomorrow, we would rule the kingdom.

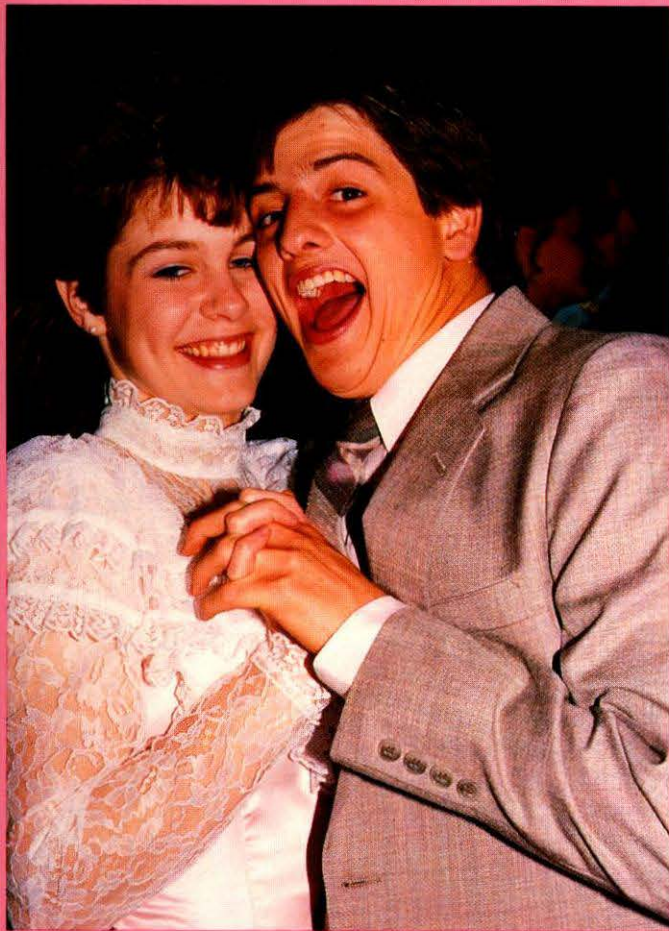

Hey, girls, where are your dates?

We voted for these guys? Oh, no!

Hurry up and grab the food. Here come Taranto and Conrad!

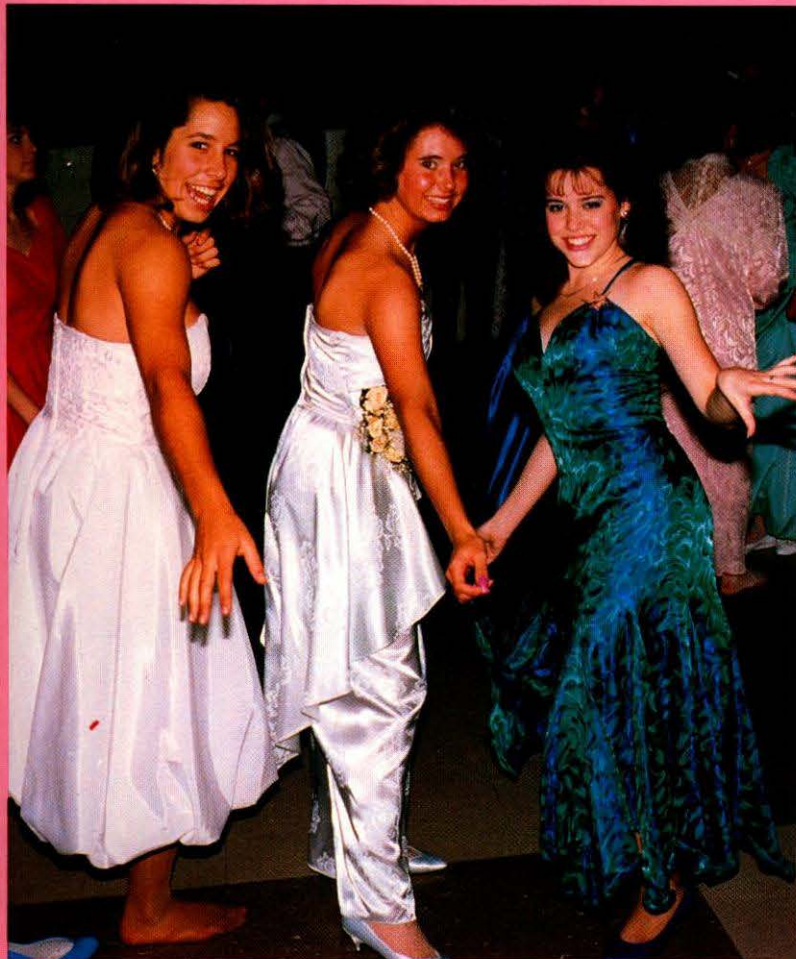

Try not to have such a bad time!

Best dressed couple, but rotten personalities.

The night was crisp. Only the piercing wind parted the misty air. The full moon, choked by dark clouds, gave no light to the midnight air. Despite the eerie atmosphere, the kings and queens braved their way through the heavy, creaking doors of Chelmsford High School. What wretched creatures would they encounter?

Upon entering the haunted halls, the shrill sounds of ear-splitting music clamored loudly. Dracula and Frankenstein did the monster mash. Scare crows wandered aimlessly. Rappers and flappers shouted their pulsing songs. Roller skaters screeched and squealed on wooden wheels. Larger-than-life cereal boxes roamed the dimly lit halls, haunting innocent passers-by. The night was disquieting!

What provoked such affliction that night? Why were tormentors preying on minds and weighing on hearts? There could be only one answer. It was October 24, 1987. The bedeviling seniors were besieging CHS with their annual Halloween Dance!

I am delighted to write about a friend and colleague with whom I have worked and socialized practically every day for thirty years.

I have known George Simonian in his role as son, brother, husband, father, friend and educator and his life is an open book. He is a loyal, dedicated and professional person with impeccable character and integrity.

George has a dry wit and an excellent sense of humor, even when he is the butt of many a remark about his bow ties. He seems to enjoy the unique distinction of being the only one outside of the Chippendale Boys to still wear a bow tie.

George has given unselfishly of his time, talent and resources to many charitable organizations. He has served four years as an officer in the United States Air Force and was discharged a disabled veteran.

George was responsible for the building of three edifices in Chelmsford, and they are all a credit to his imagination. First is his home (which is a bit more elaborate than his birthplace on South Walker Street), the current Chelmsford High School (to which George was the educational consultant), and St. Vartanantz Church, also known as "Little Ani" (for which George was chairman of the building committee).

It is difficult to speak about George outside of the school setting without automatically speaking of his lovely and devoted wife, Lucy, and his beautiful children: Lucy Ann, who is a graduate of the Naval Academy and is on active duty as an Ensign and stationed in Virginia; Kirk, who is currently a Midshipman at the Naval Academy; and Elisa, a freshman at Bridgewater State College.

I remember the many happy events in their lives that I shared with each of them, events such as birthdays, Christenings, graduations, and just plain family gatherings. Most of all, I look forward to the family Christmas picture in front of the fireplace, which I hope will brighten my holidays until Kirk turns grey. They are a family unit which is truly close and traditional. They are individuals, but they share and sacrifice for each other.

I sincerely wish George Simonian a long, healthy and well-deserved retirement as Principal Emeritus of Chelmsford High School.

George J. Betses
Vice Principal

George Simonian should be remembered as the force behind Chelmsford High School as we know it today. It was his influence, dedication, and educational philosophy that gave the impetus to the high school's reputation as one of the finest in the state. Several generations of Chelmsford citizens have benefitted from his teaching, caring, leading, and example. His impact on Chelmsford education will remain, but his presence will be missed.

Edward J. Quinn
Dean, Emerson House

George, we have worked together for a great number of years with a single goal — to make the Chelmsford School System tops. Your open-mindedness and, of course, your sincere interest in providing the best for the students have made Chelmsford High School the number one school in the state.

It has been a pleasure to work with you and for you at so many different levels. Thanks for giving me the opportunities to grow professionally throughout the years. I join the many who wish to express our thanks, gratitude and best wishes for the future.

Best of luck,
Angie Taranto

Subject: Final Memo

1. DO YOU REMEMBER:

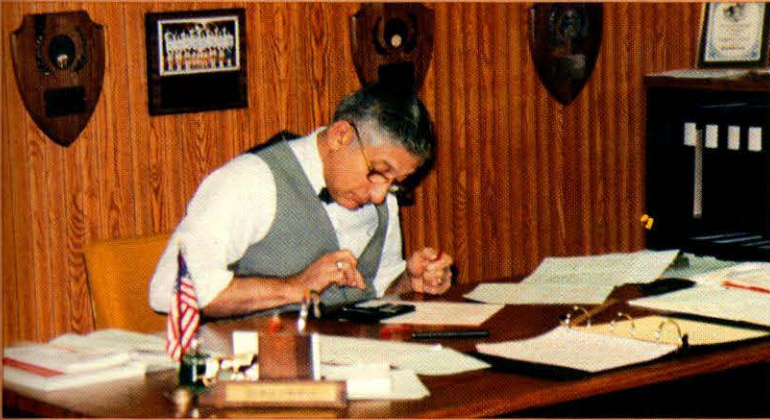

Cafe duty at the old high school — department head meetings — pacing the floor awaiting the birth of gerbils and guinea pigs — faculty plays — all your accidents — hostage crisis during the eraserscam — planning the house plan — all the great kids and teachers with whom we worked — the positive that always seemed to outweigh the frustrations — how kids were always first with us???

2. THANK YOU: For your support, for your leadership, for your dedication, and most of all, for your friendship.

3. FOR FUTURE REFERENCE: Enjoy retirement. See you at Dunkin Donuts, mods 5-6.

I want to thank the "Father of the House Plan" personally for all the support he has shown to me throughout the years. I know he has always encouraged students whether it be in academics, activities, sports, problem solving, or helping with careers. He has helped Chelmsford High School students and staff become nationally and internationally known. I am proud to have been an administrator under his charge. I wish George and his wife, Lucy, the best of luck in retirement and hope they enjoy themselves for many years. I know he will long remember that under his command Whittier House staff and students were always the best!

John T. Conrad, Jr.
Dean, Whittier House

Come on, Mr. Simonian, you can make it all come out right!

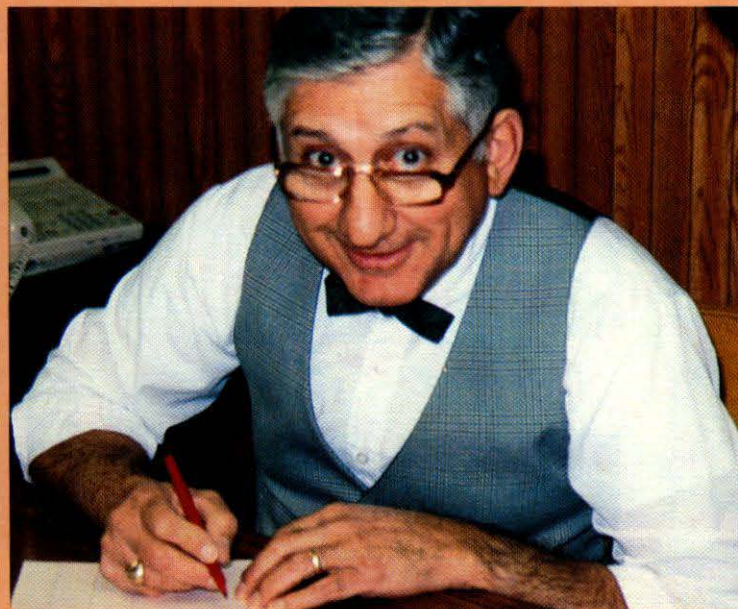

As principal, there is always a serious decision to be made.

Our Glusibe Quest

I walk down the long, dimly lighted hall. I stand before two great orange doors. The inscription reads, Room 101. I open these great doors and an aroma of woodchips and flaming steel bites my nose. Characters in booths of flying sparks peer at me as I walk past them. The man enters from his high-tech office, smiles and says, "You want our parking sticker, right?" I nod. He says, "Do you, by any chance, have your registration with you?"

Ashamed, I answer, "No."

Solemnly, the man points to the door. "Come back on Monday with your stuff," he orders. Quickly I am on my way!

I spend the weekend gathering the necessary items. Monday comes. The man greets me, carrying a tome of names and numbers. "Can I see your license and registration?" he asks, rhetorically. I reach in my wallet and pull out the two documents. He takes them. In exchange, he hands me a page full of questions. I begin to read: What is the primary color of my car? Are there any secondary colors? What's my mother's name? What's my address? My phone number? This is worse than I thought. Here I am, seventeen years old, and I am too scared to pass the easiest test of my high school career. What power the man has over me. Finally, he realizes I have frozen. He gives me the test orally. When I finally finish, and pass, the real inquisition begins. He asks, "Have I ever spoken to you before?"

Timidly, I answer, "No," even though I'm, not really sure what the question means. Why would we ever have talked? We've never even met!

Still, the man says, "We'll see about that!" He turns the pages of his volume. After a few minutes of frantic flipping, he agrees, "You're OK." (I didn't need him to tell me that.) He goes back to his office and shuts the door. I'm left standing there. What am I supposed to do? Leave? Wait? I stay! In the distance, I hear a bell ring. Four minutes later, another. I still wait. I start to count the dots on the ceiling. Two thousand dots later, the man's hand is on my shoulder. He hands me a piece of plastic with several numbers on it. Praise the Lord! I now have an official parking sticker, my very own parking sticker! Before I could thank him, the man returns to his office. I leave, wondering what lunch would have tasted like. But who really cares, because I have something better than lunch. I have my very own parking sticker.

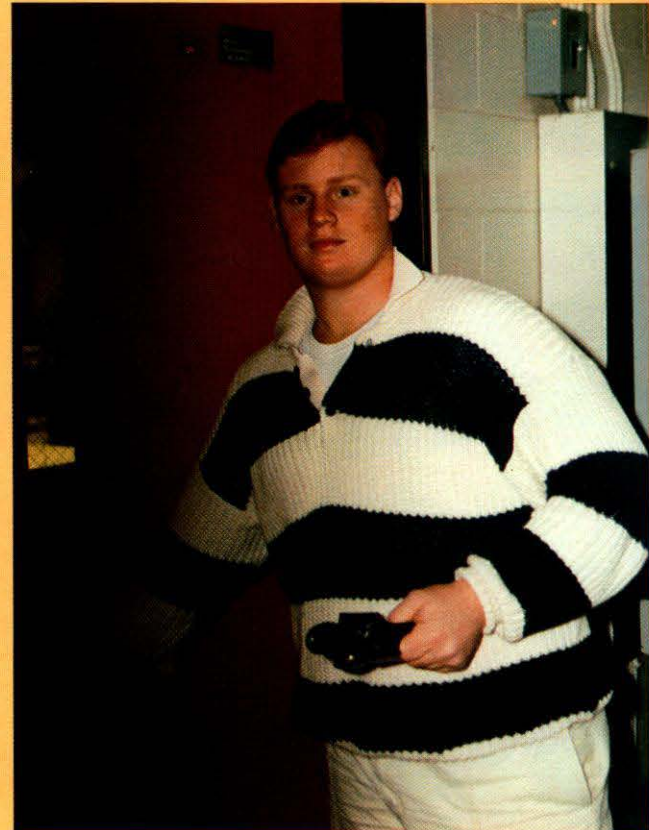

The first day I drove to school, I had to park by the fence at Harrington School. My walk to the high school took longer than the drive in. Soon, though, I become an expert at the art of strategical parking. I have found a way to get the best spot on the lot. If I leave at least fifteen minutes before I would normally catch my first run bus, I can watch the sunrise while trying to navigate the triple speed-bumped driveway. As an added benefit, once I have my space, I have enough time to do all my homework while I wait for the school to open. There is only one problem. When I try to leave after school, I have to wait half an hour for all those people that parked by Harrington to get out first.

Even with these minor problems, I consider myself one of the fortunate ones. Some of our fine students who wish to get a parking permit now are put on a waiting list after going through the near-death trauma I experienced. They sit in purgatory, waiting for the happy line-painter to make cute little spaces for compact cars (where, by the way, no one is going to park because they like to be able to open their doors). The students who get stuck on one of these infamous lists don't even get a special plastic thing to hang on their rear view mirror. Then there is the rebellious type, the students who risk parking without a permit. They might get away with that for awhile, but sooner or later, the man's computer will catch up with them. They get a WARNING! (That's because the computer is "user friendly"). But don't dare take a second chance. Then you'll have to deal with THE MAN!

You've got a previous record, Matt. No parking sticker for you!

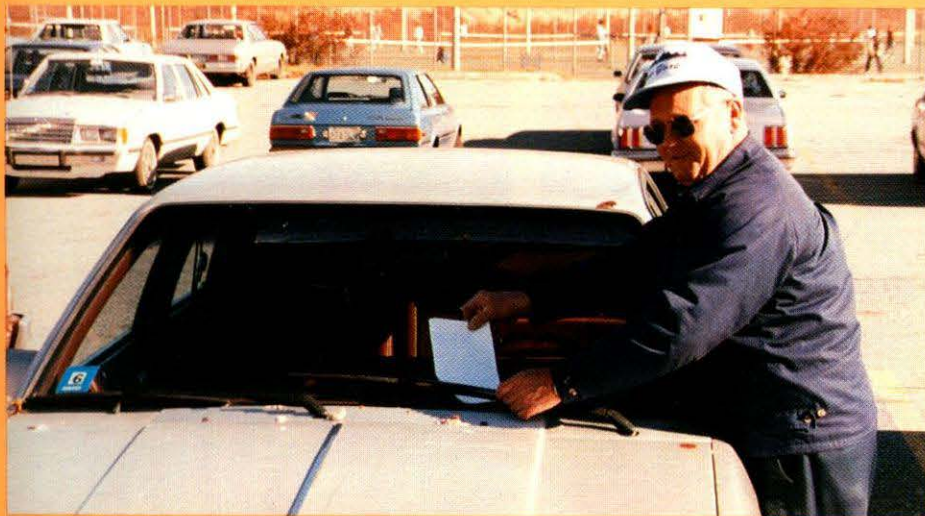

Careful, Howie, you're entering the dark valley of doom!

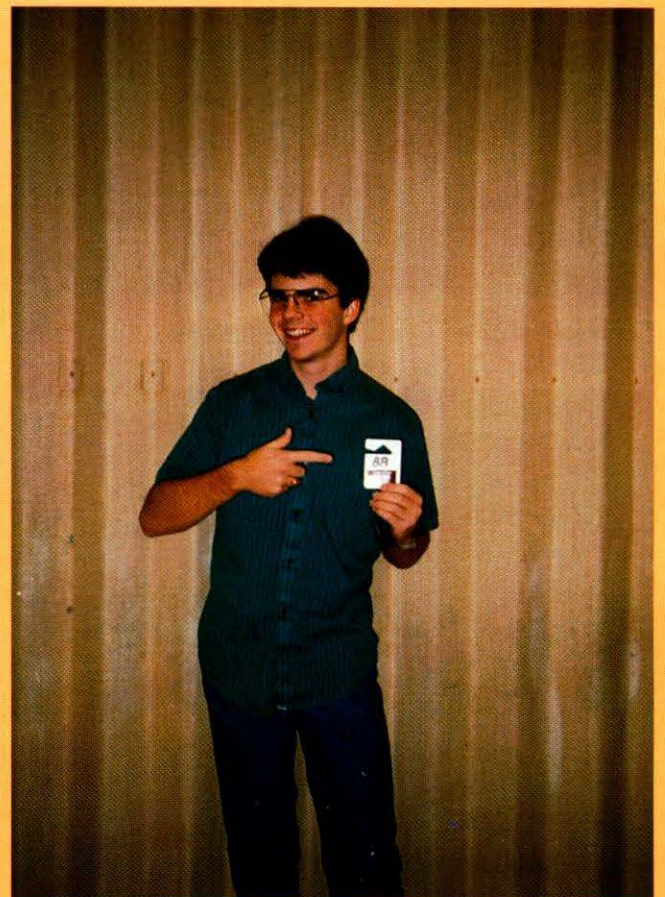

The man is watching over you.

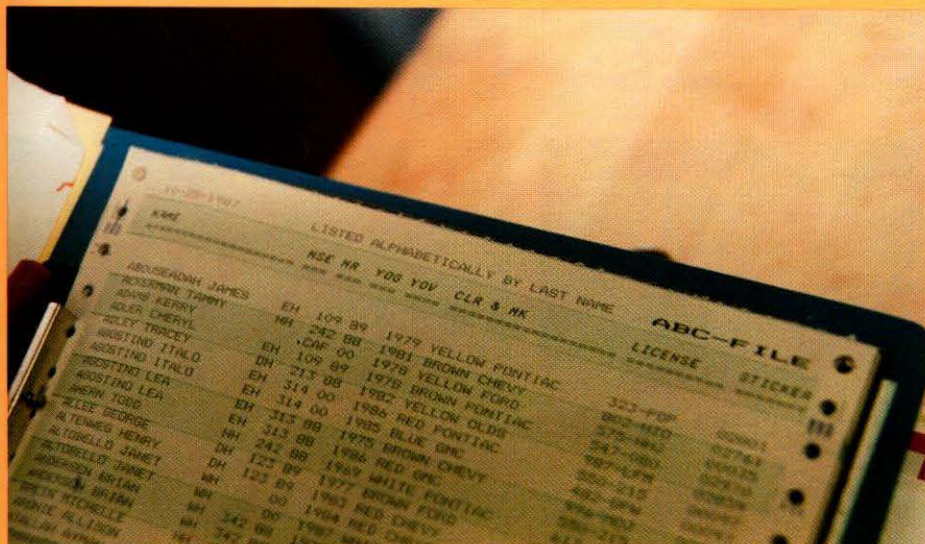

No sticker, huh?

It's a tough job, but somebody has to do it!

Your sticker to success . . . congratulations, Brett!

Anybody who's somebody is on the list.

ailments of the . . .

"These are the best years of your life!" How many times have your parents said this to you? They think they're the only ones with problems, the only ones who suffer. Don't they remember the grim diseases that seriously afflict teenagers? Any one or any combination of the following disorders can incapacitate a teenager.

SENIORITIS — This is the act of blowing off school and everything associated with schoolwork. It affects 99% of the senior class. It is extremely contagious. Symptoms include absence of books, frequent sightings in the cafe, and going home after homeroom.

BROWN NOSEITIS — For people with Senioritis, Brown Noseitis is the only way to guarantee graduation. These students, if they handle this disease effectively, can achieve honor roll performances without ever opening a book.

PROCRASTINITIS — This is more of an art form than a disease. It always accompanies Senioritis. It takes hold during the students' attempts to do research papers and college applications. There is no known cure, and contracting it is unavoidable.

CAF II ITIS — This infirmity is a direct side affect of Senioritis. Victims spend all their free time in the cafe, trying to see how many Disney Pops they can eat. Sufferers usually have orange, green or blue tongues.

CAF I ITIS — These students have a schedule that is so packed that they have to do their homework while eating lunch. Symptoms include grease-stained homework papers and textbooks filled with food wrappers. Students often contract this disease in conjunction with Nerditis.

NERDITIS — This is characterized by pocket protectors, calculators, slide rules, glass cases and pens in front pockets. Patients also have mechanical pencils and two notebooks for each subject. It is believed that nerds are the 1% of the twelfth grade who are exempt from Senioritis.

MONARCH NOTEITIS — This disease is also known as CLIFF NOTEITIS. Cliff notes are for people who would rather eat caf food than read. The symptoms are single-digit grades on the tests of the assigned book (since every teacher has the notes and knows what not to ask.)

JOCKITIS — This disorder is a combination of Senioritis, Procrastinitis, Caf II itis, and Monarch Noteitis. It is caused by consecutive three-sport years. Sufferers often wear numbered shirts, indicating the stage of the disease.

PUNKITIS — These sufferers want to be such non-conformists that they all look alike, ending up as conformists. This is a vicious circle, causing the afflicted to spend thousands of dollars on wardrobes and hairdos.

TELEPHONEITIS — Teenage girls are most susceptible to this disease. Signs include talking on the telephone a minimum of two hours per day and hiding in dark closets to have a private conversation. Advanced sufferers stow away in the IDC to use the teachers' phones! Incurable sufferers use the phone in the caf, contorting their bodies into the corners of the cement walls to muffle all the background noise.

WALKMANITIS — This disease is a student's final effort to block out the world. Symptoms include uncontrollable snapping of the fingers, bouncing of the head, lip synching, and foot tapping. Often times the only cure is surgical removal of the earphones.

CHELMSFORDITIS — This disorder flares up particularly on weekends. It is caused by the realization that Chelmsford is not the most exciting place on earth. If there is not a party or a game, the student has no choice but to do homework. This often results in heavy sighs and frustrated screams.

On a day to day basis, these ailments of the student body are difficult to endure. But there is hope. Research indicates that most teenagers will outgrow these diseases.

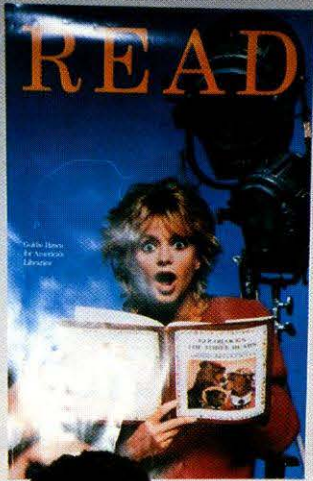

Just one more exciting day in Chelmsford.

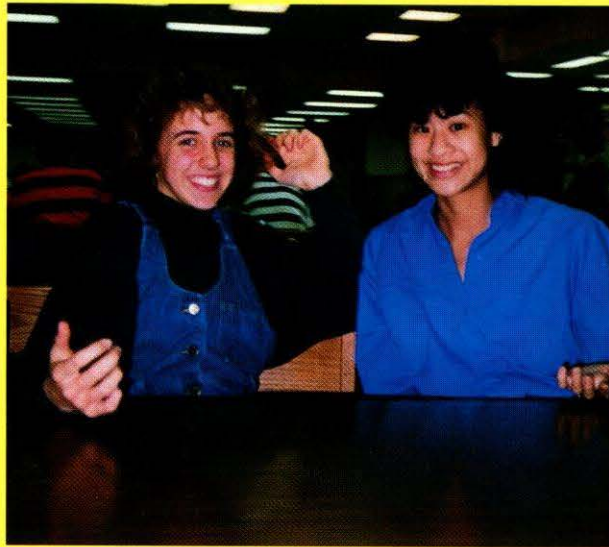

Nerditis, in its advanced stage!

Queens

Welcome to the kingdom of Chelmsford High School. You have now entered into the land of royalty, the land of Kings and Queens. For eleven years, you have been princes and princesses; but this year, on September 10, you had your coronation.

As Kings and Queens, you have spent this year enjoying your reign over the student body. You have been highly respected, admired, and envied by your sovereigns. Your leadership role has set an example for future monarchs. You have been the leaders of the kingdom of Chelmsford High School, looked upon by other nobility who imagine themselves someday wearing the same crowns.

As the Class of 1988, believe that you have left your mark on the history of this kingdom. You have earned your crowns. As you minister over the nobility, the gentry and the jesters, reflect upon how very young you once were and remember how anxiously you looked forward to your reign.

Now it is time to say goodbye to your mentors who have guided and encouraged you for the past four years. Although you must bequeath the royal scepter to the Class of 1989, you are still in charge. You are in charge of your own lives.

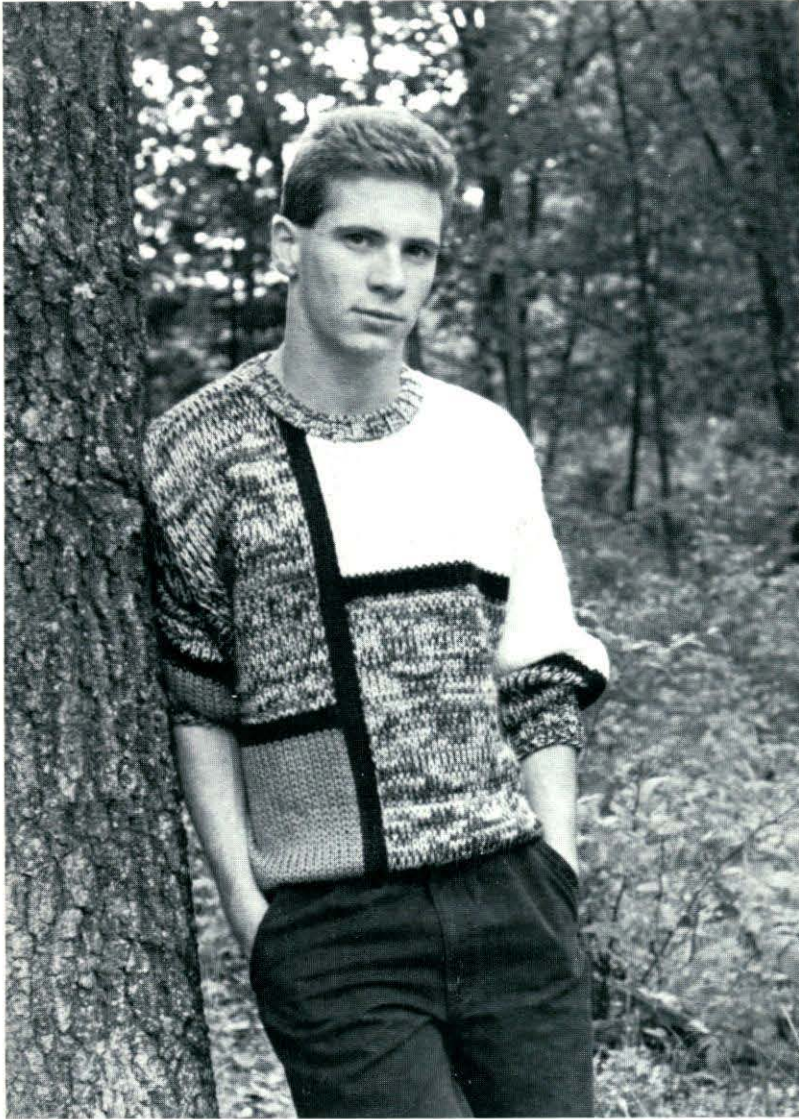

We, your advisors, Mrs. Linda Geohegan, Mrs. Michlyn Queenan, and Mrs. Ann O'Bryant, are saddened as you leave the kingdom of Chelmsford High but pleased with your past successes. We wish that each of you will accomplish the goals which you now hold in your hearts. We hope that what you have learned in this kingdom will be useful in your future endeavors.

As you graduate on June 5, 1988, we hope that you will remember your reign as a successful and happy one. Be assured that the memories left by the Class of 1988 will remain with us forever.

Farewell!

he Royal Advisors

Chad Rogers, President of the Class of 1988.

Mrs. Linda Geohegan, Mrs. Ann O'Bryant, and Mrs. Michlyn Queenan, class advisors.

This Coke is for you, Bundy!

Executor of The Round Table

This yearbook holds the story of our quest for our diploma, and it documents our achievements in the kingdom. But as President, I would like to lead the Class of 1988 from the realm of fantasy to the reality of our high school years. From September, 1984 to June, 1988, we have experienced hard work, good fun, and challenging struggles.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank every senior for contributing to the success of the Class of '88. Never before has a class President been so blessed with a student body having so much school spirit. You made my job enjoyable, rewarding and a privilege.

I must also give my sincere thanks to the class advisors: Mrs. Linda Geohegan, Mrs. Michlyn Queenan, and Mrs. Ann O'Bryant. And none of our class' success could have been achieved without the class officers: Brian Marsella, Vice President; David Hedison, Treasurer; and Julie Peters, Secretary. Of course, none of our class' goals would have been accomplished without the hard working class representatives.

Our times at CHS have been the most important and memorable of our lives. Not only did we acquire book sense, but we learned about each other, about teamwork, about surviving. We learned about life.

This yearbook holds the story of our class' quest; now it is time to go out and conquer the world on our own!
Always remember your good friends and good times at CHS.

Officers of The Round Table

We the Class of 1988, are the proud leaders of the kingdom of Chelmsford High School. Four years ago, we set out on a quest to become the Kings and Queens of the land. Hard work and determination helped us achieve our goal.

As jesters, we began our journey. We turned a pot luck supper into a royal feast. Even as beginners, we were strong.

Soon we became gentry. We were thrilled with our success and eagerly became more involved in the kingdom. In fact, we held some of our own festivals, such as the successful Video Star Dances and a special journey to Canobie Lake Park.

Although we enjoyed those years, we anxiously awaited our time to be dubbed nobility, the enclhons of our society. Again we held several festivals. Our most elegant was the Junior Cotillion, themed "Almost Paradise". We convinced everyone of what we, ourselves, already knew — the Class of 1988 was a special group. This was our last festival before our coronation.

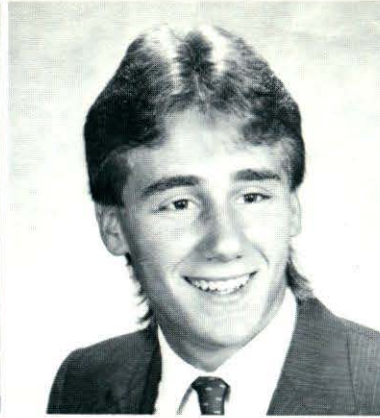

In September, 1987, we proudly accepted our crowns. We were a team; each King and each Queen had an equal influence. As we strolled along the hallowed halls of CHS, we realized that our sovereigns admired us. We knew that with admiration came the responsibility to set a good example. Through our proper deeds, we earned our right to rule.

Alas, our reign ended on June 5, 1988. Future generations will look upon us as true and kind people, 530 of us in our happy days.

The officers thank the royal Class of 1988 for the honor of representing such a chivalrous kingdom.

Best wishes,
 Brian Marsella, Vice President

Bloodmobile

Ever since May, 1975, Chelmsford High's seniors have sponsored two blood mobiles a year, one in October and another in May. The senior class, under the direction of Dean Boucher, is responsible for preparation of the bloodmobile.

Approximately 20% of all eligible students donate blood, making this one of the most successful drives in our area. Those students ineligible to give blood due to age or weight restrictions eagerly donate their time. They help set up the equipment, take care of the clerical duties, and offer encouraging words to those who are giving blood. Without these students, the drive would not run so smoothly.

In the past twenty-six bloodmobiles, Chelmsford High students and faculty have donated 2,864 pints of blood, an average of 110 pints of blood per drive. We are proud of our school. Congratulations students, teachers, and Dean Boucher for giving and caring.

Senior Andy Rega signals all systems go as Jim Ayoub assists in taking Andy's temperature.

"I feel like dancing!" exclaims Cara Francesconi after her donation to the Bloodmobile.

Tricia and Tracey feel good about their contributions.

Heidi Ayer's smile shows the courageousness spirit of Chelmsford High School seniors.

"Come on down! You're the next contestant on the Price is Right!"

We did our fair share.

Where's Vanna?

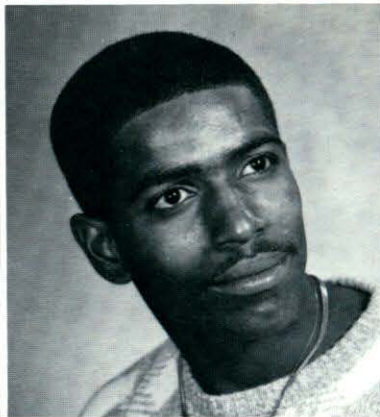

Magazine Drive

Three cheers for the Class of 1988! Not only did we collect the largest sum of money ever, $47,308, but we now hold the record for the highest amount collected in one day, with $19,031 earned. A special salute goes out to superachievers: Michael Bettencourt, Michelle Roy, Brian Marsella, Michelle Varallo, and Dawn Wholey. Each sold over twenty-five subscriptions. For this, each had their choice of a Casio keyboard, a Go-Go Gorilla, or a black and white television. Other seniors participating in the Drive had the opportunity to win cash prizes, along with tee-shirts, blankets, stuffed lions, and Class of '88 painters caps. All profits of the Magazine Drive help defer the costs of Senior Week. Once again, congratulations Class of 1988!

Superlatives

Superlative (Su-per'la-tive), expressing the utmost degree of the manner denoted — this was the definition used when the Class of 1988 voted for their classmates who most demonstrated these characteristics. The decision was difficult, but the ballots were cast, the votes were counted, and the choices were made. It was a great tribute to be chosen out of the 530 seniors as most representative of a particular category. Congratulations to each of you.

Surf's Up!

Peace, John

Open mouth, insert foot.

Rockettes.

Mike and Sue will have fun, fun, fun till her daddy takes her T-Bird away.

Kerri's future is so bright, she's gotta' wear shades.

watch out!

OK, Arjay, who are you squirting now?

Catch a wave, girls.

Saturday, January 23rd — what better time of year to have a Beach Party Dance! It was a chilling 3°, but jams and halter tops were still the mode of dress. The Chelmsford High School gym had been transformed to a Hawaiian shore. Chaise lounges and beach balls spanned the horizon. Early arrivers to this dance did notice a peculiar twist, though. There was no disc jockey. But that did not stop the fun; students improvised some pretty serious volleyball competitions. None too late, the D.J. did come with his blaring stereo equipment. He provided the right musical entertainment to put the dancers in a summer mood, shades of what was just around the corner.

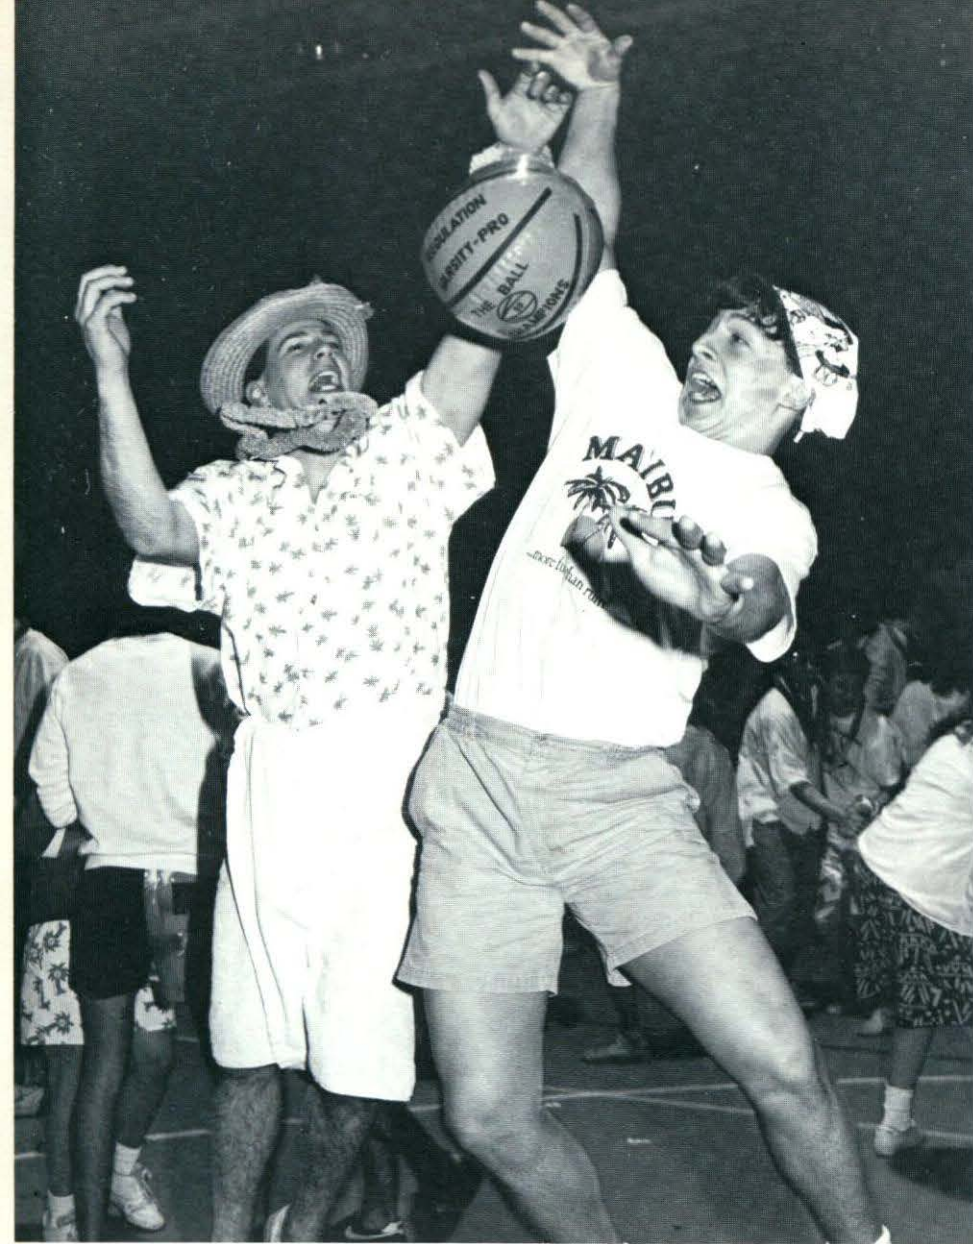

Going on a surfing safari, Kevin?

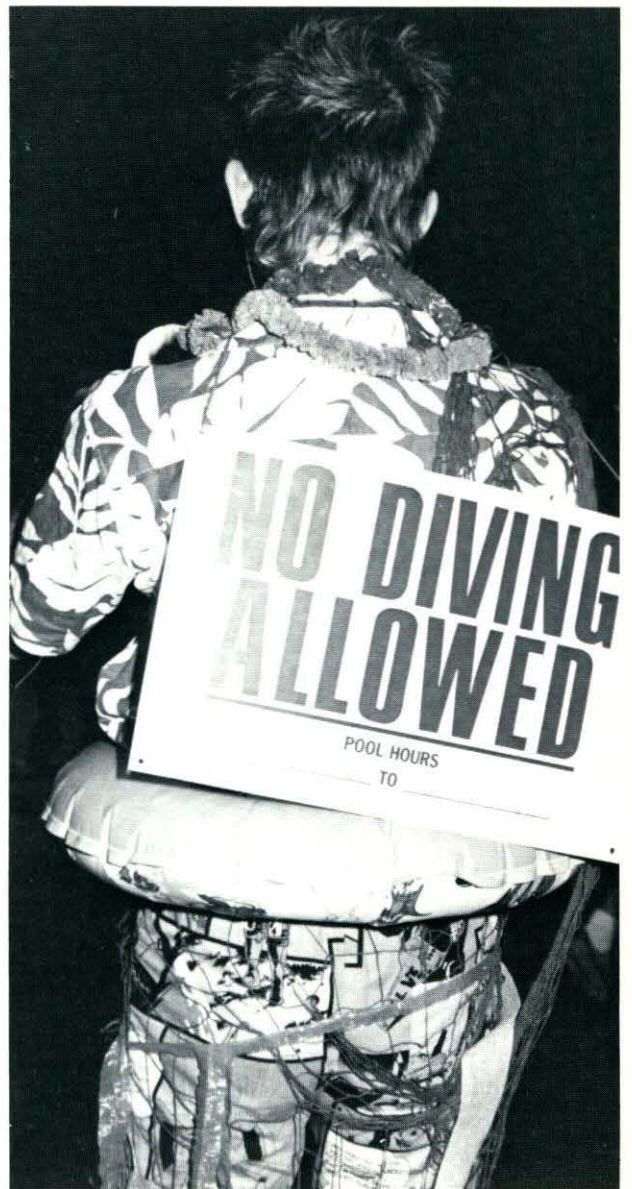

Good vibrations for the Class of '88!

CHS — where the kings make the rules, and the queens take all the liberties.

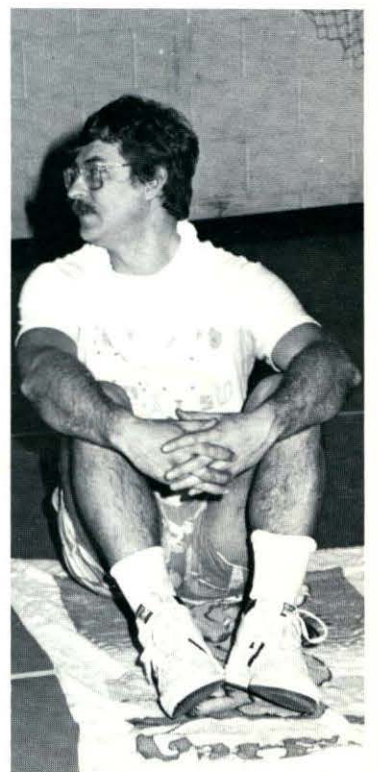

Wipe out!

No skinny dippin' either!

Shielding yourselves from the hazy shades of winter?

Are you waiting for the tide to roll in, Mr. Winn?

Holiday Romance

As Christmas time drew near, thoughts turned to shopping, presents, and vacation. But another exciting event was fast approaching — the first semi-formal dance of the year, the Christmas Dance. Conversations and thoughts were focused on what to wear and with whom to go.

On Friday, December 11, 1987, the night of the Holiday Dance finally arrived. The cafeteria was magically transformed to a beautiful winter scene. Sparkling lights decorated the Christmas trees. Garlands glistened. Snow covered the windows. A lavish feast of homemade sweets and a fountain of pink punch were available for the dining pleasures of hungry dancers. Even Santa Claus himself came to this festive occasion.

The Kings and Queens, Nobility, Gentry, and even the Jesters dressed in their finest vestments. The highlight of this regal event was the crowning of the King and Queen, Nick Lupoli and Alicia Contardo. The royal court were Michelle Roy, Steve Cahill, Abigail Davenport, and Steven Swan.

This dance was special for all who attended. It was a night of "Winter Magic."

The King, the Queen and their Royal Advisors.

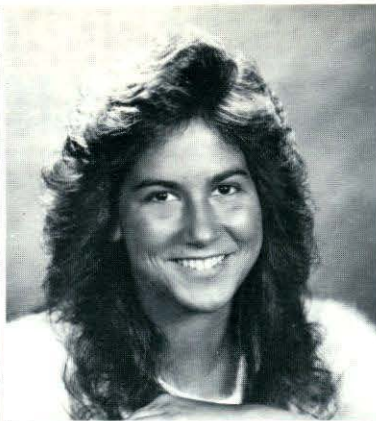

Alicia and Nick pose for the official royal picture.

In Loving Memory

*It took so long to realize
What was behind her laughing eyes.
She seemed so happy,
But she was so sad,
We've lost the best friend
That we've ever had.
We shared each day,
With its fears to shed,
Now God has her forever instead.
Now all our days are filled with tears,
Wish I could go back and change those years.
Rest in Peace, Mel!
You're in our hearts,
Wish we never had to part.
But when its time for us to go
We'll meet you there,
We love you so,

Year in the Senior year, the Class of '88 rules! We sponsor all the fun dances: Halloween, Christmas, Beach Party, and Hawaiian Luau. Underclassmen look at our social success in awe. "Wow, if only I were a senior," each whispers. We also control the corridors. Whether or not underclassmen arrive to class on time is directly determined by the speed of the seniors strutting in front of them. If the rulers are in slow speed, it's tardy to class for everyone behind them. And forget about a passing lane. There's never just one senior — we travel in packs, horizontally across the entire corridor! We also take charge in the cafeteria. It is forbidden for underclassmen to sit at the senior tables. It's not that there are reserve placards anywhere, but everyone knows that seniors have preferential seating. If an underclassman should make a mistake, the ominous senior stare quickly corrects it. At CHS, the Class of '88 rules. But will someone please tell the colleges? It's high time they eliminated all the unnecessary pressures that cramp our senior style. After all, we're only kids, and kids just wanna' have fun.

SAT's! Who can party on Friday night if we have tests the next morning? Bad enough these scores determine the fate of our entrance into the college of our choice, but what crazy adult decided that these exams should start at 8:00 AM? That's why the attendance at the SAT's is a lot like Breakfast Club. There are two main stereotypes. There are seniors who set their alarm for 5:00 AM to get ready. They have to look just so because everybody who's anybody will be there. By the time they shower, do their hair, and match their clothes, it's 7:00. Then they've been brainwashed into eating a nourishing breakfast before taking the tests. On the other hand, there are those seniors who just roll out of bed fifteen minutes before exam-time, wearing to school the same clothes they slept in. They don't bother with breakfast because they're still full from the eight large pieces of cold pizza they downed at 2:00 AM. Regardless of your senior stereotype, 8:00 AM is no time to think on a Saturday. Don't the people at Princeton know that seniors sleep till noon on weekends?

COLLEGE APPLICATIONS! Do the Deans of Admissions realize how many lies are told on applications? We're asked to expound on the meaning of life. The great philosophers can't agree on the answer, but Harvard expects a seventeen year old to have no problem responding to a 500 word essay. (Some colleges want the answer in 25 words or less!) And do you think Yale wants to know the same thing, so we can copy the Harvard composition? Of course not. That would be too easy. This time we have to explain what we hope to gain at their fine institution of higher education. Do you think any of us would be accepted if we told the truth? We want to go to college so we can be rich. We want nice houses, swimming pools, sports cars and stereos. We need the parchment paper so Master Card will give us a line of credit. No chance! Instead, seniors spend months writing these college essays. Teachers correct them and we rewrite. Teachers correct them again and we rewrite. The final copy includes words supplied from Mr. Roget and philosophies even Plato would be proud of.

RECOMMENDATIONS! This is a nervewracking experience. After four years of high school and a minimum of thirty teachers, we have to decide which three might say something nice about us. If Seniors have all the right answers!

Need a few more books, Diane?

PRESSURE!

Life of a Senior only we hadn't thrown all those paper airplanes and spitballs in class. If only we always did our homework. Now is the time for teachers' revenge. They've got every senior squirming. We need them, and they know it. Serious brown-nosing is called for. The real delinquents resort to bribery. Chocolates usually work. Anyway, once we decide on which three teachers might think we're alright kids, we have to figure out a way to ask them to put it in writing. This is so embarrassing. Leaving the recommendation form in their mailboxes sounds good to most of us, but our parents have taught us better manners. We have to ask, face to face. We hide our sweaty palms and hold our nervous stomachs as we make our approach. What if the teacher says no? It will be so humiliating. First dates were easier than this. Fortunately, the teachers are pleased to oblige. Still, it is so hard to ask.

For years we have waited to be seniors, to rule the realm. But a word to underclassmen who can't wait to be kings and queens — have your fun now, while you still can. Once deadlines start, there is no escape. You are inevitably trapped in reams of paperwork that will hold you captive. In September, there should be a sign over every senior homeroom door: Warning, the Surgeon General has determined that paperwork is hazardous to your health. Come January (after midyears, of course), the sign can be taken down. It's then that our vision is cleared. We can actually see the bottoms of our desks. And it's dust-collecting time for our brains, because class ranks have been calculated for the last time. All that's left on the senior calendar is fun!

SENIOR PRANKS! Now it's our time for revenge. Which teachers gave too much homework? Who gave the hardest tests? Which ones have a good sense of humor? No teachers are spared. Let's steal their red pens. Hmm . . . the outside walls could stand a little decorating (but be sure to use water paints — we're out for fun, not super-vised study). And that first warm spring day, the teachers really get confused when the seniors (with or without parental consent) decide to go to the beach instead of to school. The 530 absence notes the next day are always good for a chuckle, even from the most serious of teachers.

SENIOR WEEK! These are the days — these must be the days — when we sit and reminisce about our four years of high school. We talk about times lost and wonderful, happy and sad. It's our first glance at The 1988 Lion; in the years to come, this will be our most prized memorabilia. The yearbook will tell our story over and over again. We'll reread all the messages our best of friends wrote, remembering our best of times with them. None of us will ever forget the Girl's Luncheon at Westford Regency, the Boy's Luncheon at Windsor Mills, the Prom at Copley Marriott, and the Senior Banquet at Sheraton Tara.

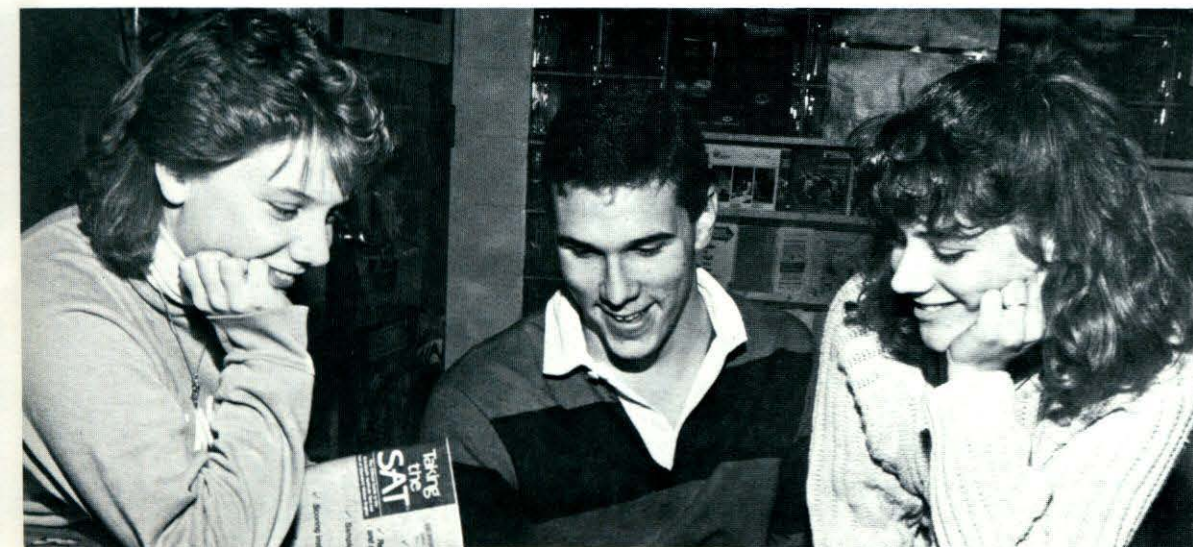

GRADUATION DAY! Where did the years go? High school flew by! Commencement in Alumni Stadium . . . to commence means to begin. That's a contradiction. This day ends the greatest times of our lives. Are we sure we want to turn our tassels from left to right? We listen to every name being called — each sparks a certain memory. Suddenly it's over. We do feel refreshed, more clear-headed, almost ready to start again. The Class of '88 rules!

Jen, are you trying to bribe Mrs. Harper?

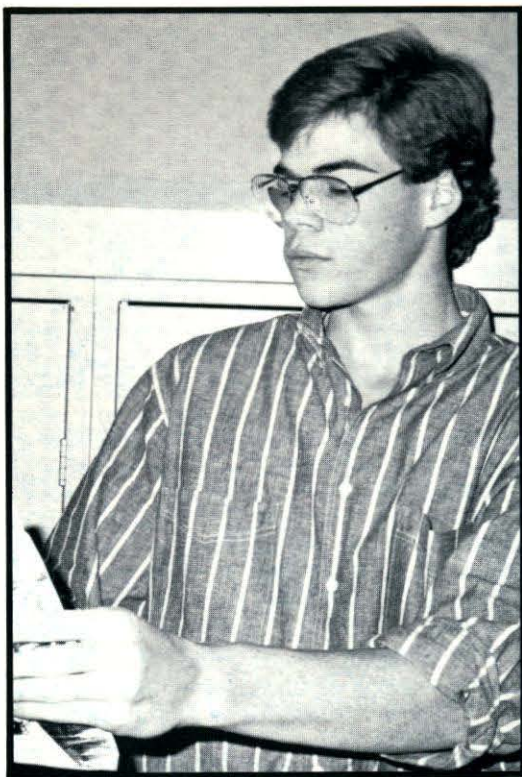

Kevin and Debbie wonder what to do with their lives.

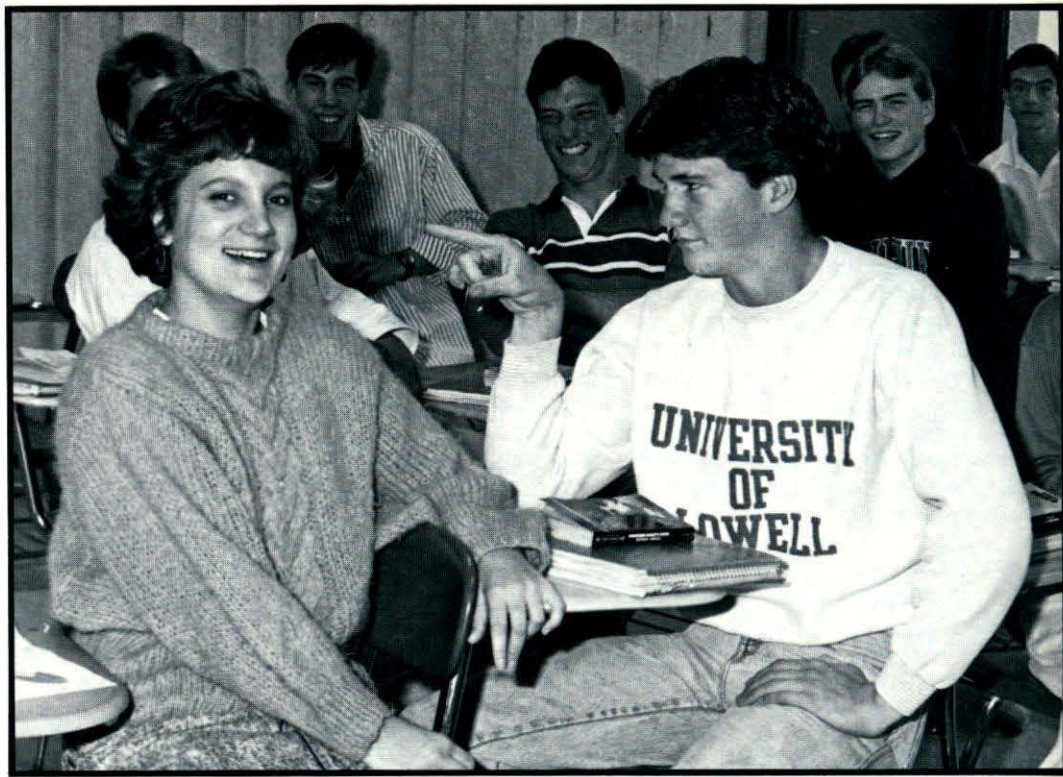

Gee, I didn't know SAT's were so much fun!

We've seen a few of these before?

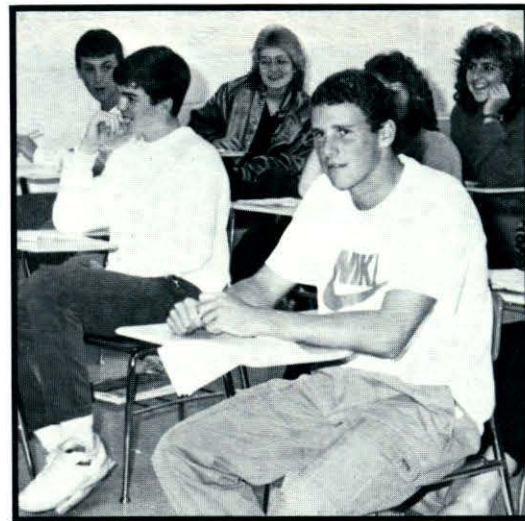

Is this a quick cram session, Scott?

The University of Lowell wants You!

Anita and Louise — what a cute picture.

Are you daydreaming in class again, Bob?

Take my picture and you die!

Typical seniors in the cafe — Are they typical seniors?

N

The Juniors are a noble lot, with much to do this year. Good grades, SAT's the Cotillion, leave little time to fear. We pay homage to those above, seniors rule all know. But we of humble nobility, will hold our own just so. The Sophomore class, squires all, help support our every endeavor. And Freshmen will be there to serve, this, their first year ever. This castle, ours, with hallowed halls, a home to one and all: CHS, a place of learning, a place to have a ball. So this, the year of eighty-eight, we serve our mighty school. Because in twelve short months, it's the class of eighty-nine that shall rule. The lion roars, but we fear not, we are never frightened. We know that if we find our way, we will be enlightened. Athletic tournaments and academic jousts do here abound, the mighty Juniors are giving support, round upon round. We salute the Seniors, 'tis their year for sure. But it will not be long, our waves will reach the longed-for shore. We make the journey from lowly serf to mighty ruling class.

This is the last year before the end, and it will quickly pass. This ballad is over, our song is sung, till next year, when the Class of '89 is number one!

"Does anyone know the answer?" asks Alisa.

Kara and Sandy take time out for our yearbook photographer.

"Oh, no," says John, "another picture!"

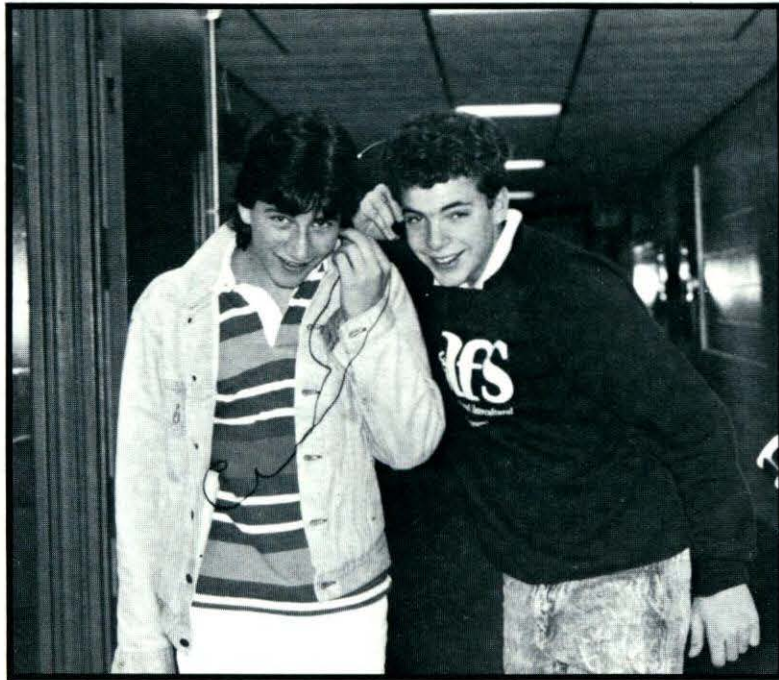

Kim and Kristin have fun in the Career Ed Center.

Throughout . . .

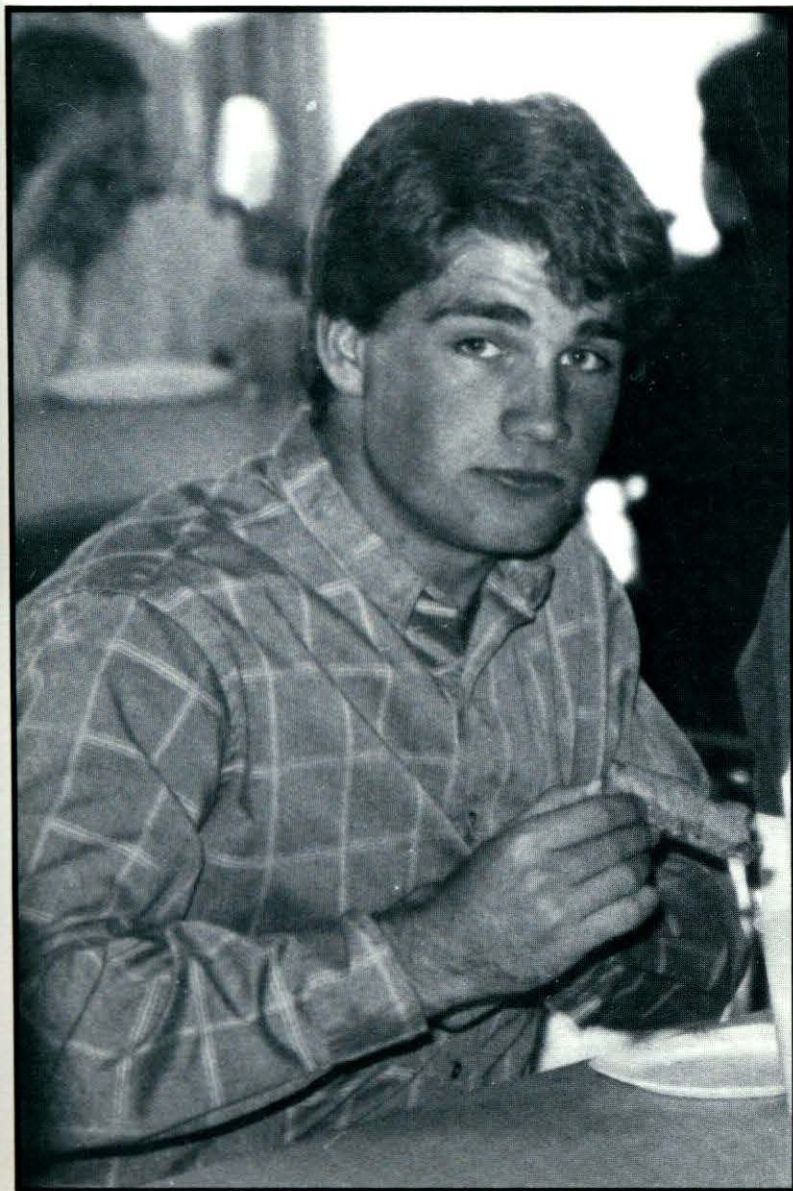

Champs, huh, Andy?

Nice of you to share, Chris and Mark!

Smile, Amy!

"Do you mind? I'm trying to eat," says Mark.

Well, what are you dreaming about, Sharon?

Jason and Vicki enjoy the freedoms of school.

The Kingdom

Well, Kyle, did you know about Anne, Alison, and Lisa?

Kim takes a break in the cafe.

Kathy, Christine, and Deb share Skittles and smiles.

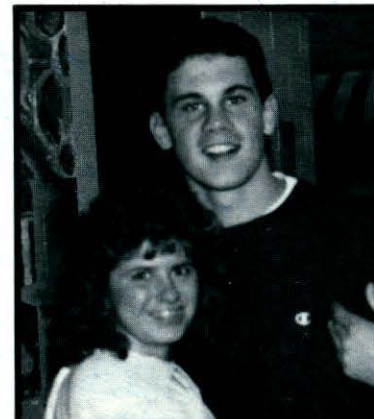

Tough to be cute, huh Kevin?

Alyssa is enjoying her class!

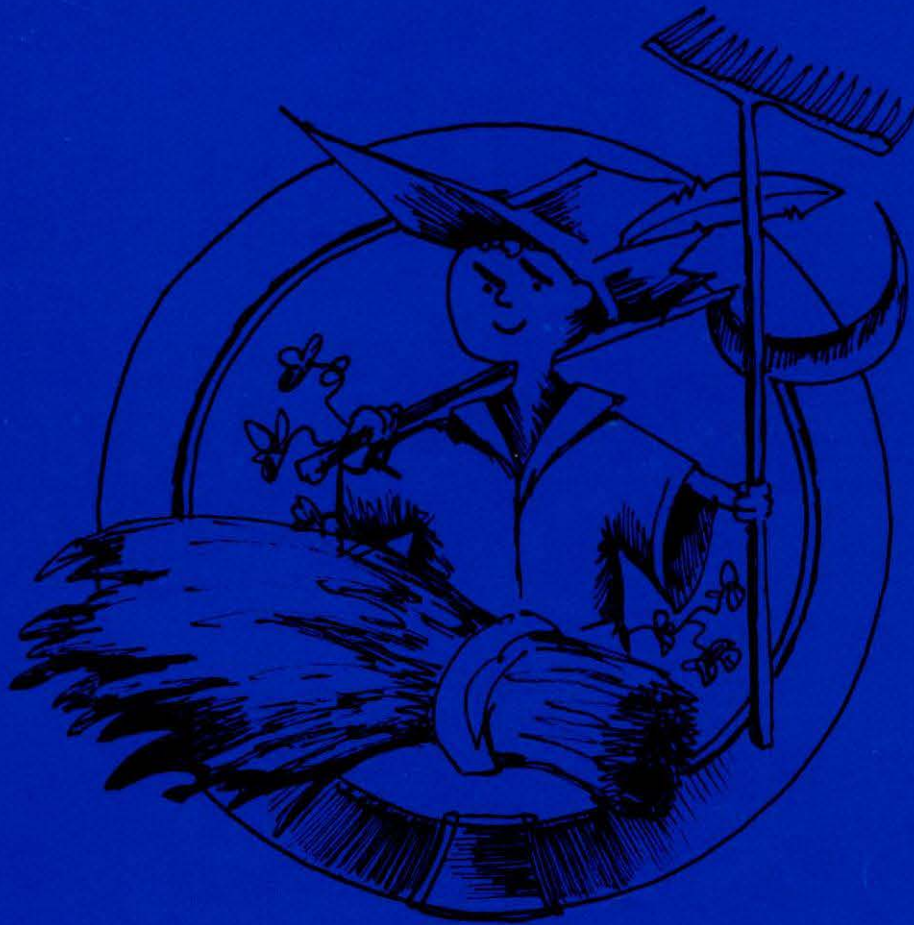

Is Mark your armrest, Geoff?

Yes, Mike, Pam's hugging you!

entry

In medieval times, the gentry was the social class immediately below the nobility. They were known to be generous and courteous. Their time served as gentry was their apprenticeship for becoming nobility and, ultimately, royalty.

The Class of 1990's role at Chemsford High School closely resembles that of the gentry in the medieval court. As sophomores, they are still playful and contemptuous. The pressure of class rank, SAT's and college applications has not yet overwhelmed them. They have plenty of playtime because tuition costs have not saddled them with an after school job. As sophomores, they still know how to have fun. And their lightheartedness brings a special vitality to the school.

The Class of 1990 also parallels the gentry because they feel the propriety of asserting themselves. Certainly they are far too sophisticated to be considered jesters. On the other hand, they do not have the polish of the nobility.

They are in a transition stage, holding on to their naive while also beginning to prepare for their futures. To cross this bridge, the sophomores become more actively involved in school life. While not prepared to be editors-in-chief of a literary publication or captains of a sport, they are definitely qualified to be staff members or linemen. This takes their devotion and energy, which they freely give. Even though they are not acclaimed with the glory the upperclassmen receive, the sophomores are developing all the feelings of gentle people. Their spirit and breeding eventually will earn them their titles.

At Chemsford High School, the Class of 1990 is a distinct part of the kingdom. They are a wonderful spectacle to behold as they learn to accept the changes and chances of life.

Once upon a time in a quaint little suburb, there was a palace called Chemsford High School. In this palace, there were jesters — giddy folk whose purpose it was to amuse the royalty, the nobility, and their families. Their witty remarks and silly antics were enough to keep the whole kingdom laughing.

The jesters, otherwise known as freshmen, aimed to please the upperclassmen. But the nobility thought the wearers of cap and bells were simply whimsical. Their inexperience caused them to make many mistakes which provided much comic relief for all the upperclassmen who had already learned the twists and turns of CHS. For example, the merry-makers had no clue how to maneuver around the building. The long and winding corridors and the fast-paced schedule of the high school were a traumatic change from the comfortable novel they had lived in for the past two years. "What's the difference between an IMC and an IDC?" they wondered. "What's a free mod?" they asked. "How come the teachers give homework on the first day?" they quipped. All in all, they were totally confused.

Also, the jesters got "ragged on" for the way they talked. They used words such as "like, wicked, psyche, queer, and gay." They used phrases such as "Don't have a cow!" and "Get a life!" For their talk, they were bantered by the upperclassmen.

Although the shenanigans of the freshmen kept other members of the kingdom laughing, like a jester, the Class of 1991 proved to be very clever. They soon caught on to life at CHS. Certainly they continued to envy the kings and queens.

They wanted to attend their dances, participate in varsity activities, and have freedoms passes. But even though they could not be part of these phases of school life, they became important in their own right. They joined freshmen sports teams, became actively involved in the extra curricular program, and tended to their studies.

The Class of 1991 became an integral part of Chelmsford High School. The nature of their youth always made them amusing, but the upperclassmen were laughing with them, not at them.

Up to Date in '88

Each evening, from December to December, before you drift to sleep, think back on all the tales that you remember of 1988. Ask every person if he's heard the story. And tell it strong and clear if he has not.

This year's main event occurred for six days in July, when 55 million TV viewers were held in thrall with Marine Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North as he described to Congress the aiding of Nicaraguan contras from profits of arms sales to Iran. The hearings were a marathon examination of executives' powers. Does the American public condone the operation of secret bank accounts and the shredding of evidence? Should the President have sold arms to Iran in hopes of freeing Americans kidnapped by Tehran-backed terrorists? Was the President ultimately accountable for the channeling of profits to the contras? Throughout the hearings, a wave of "Olliemania" developed; one celebrity agent valued North's story at $5 million.

Also drawing attention was the U.S. — U.S.S.R. relationship. First, there was great hope for a peaceful arms negotiation. President Ronald Reagan and Soviet Head of State Mikhail Gorbachev signed a treaty to ban medium and shorter-range missiles from Europe and Asia. However, the two nations opposed each other at the Persian Gulf. The waterway was loaded with mines and missiles which damaged more than four hundred ships. This includes the USS Stark, hit by two Iraqi missiles and killing thirty-seven crewmen. Perhaps wars happen because nations have no confidence. They are frightened. Nations are like people — they have feelings of inferiority, or of superiority, or of revenge, or of fear. And so they fight. What is the resolution?

This was also the year for scandal. A TV ministry, headed by Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker, was forced to file bankruptcy, face a federal investigation for tax evasion and go to trial for mail fraud. This fall was from an empire which, in just thirteen years, grossed $129 million a year from its 15 million television viewers. The PTL was brought down for Jim Bakker's sex fling that he tried to cover up through bribery. Jim's public repentance and Tammy's scenes of tearful forgiveness didn't work. They were forced to resign.

Also in the news was Black Monday, October 19th, when the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped a record five hundred and eight points. Within a mere six hours of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, $500,000,000.00 went phfft. Down the drain. That is equivalent to all the gold held by all the governments and their banks on earth. A few investigators could afford to take the long view, "It's only paper." But for many who had money in the market, a third of them private individuals, what was lost may have been life savings, the college educations of their children or a down payment on a house.

More stir in American homes was caused when the Surgeon General and the Secretary of Education called to teach AIDS prevention in the schools, including the use of condoms. The program was in full swing, if not in

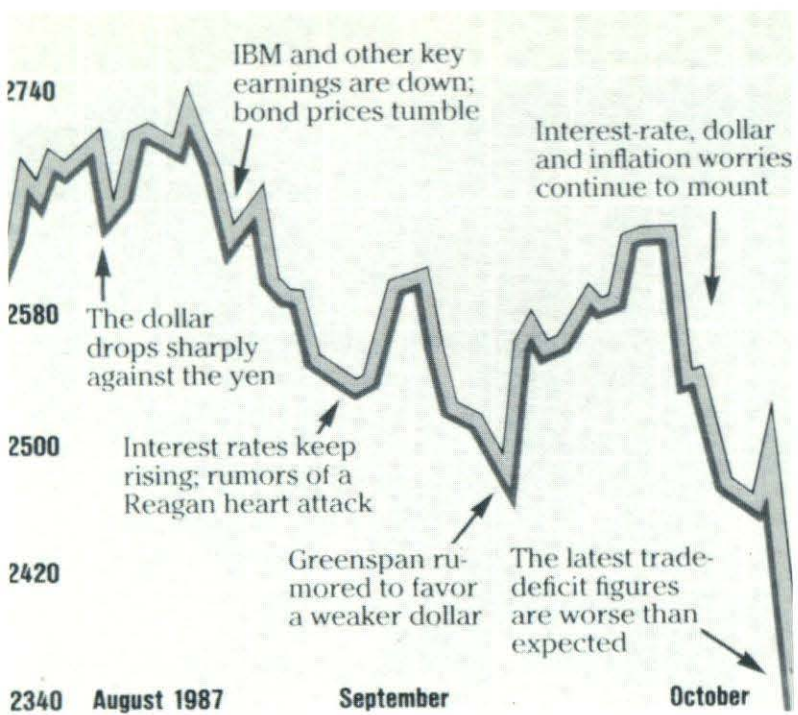

"It is the largest arms reduction in history." — President Reagan, shown here with Gorbachev.

"I came here to tell you the truth — the good, the bad, and the ugly" — Lieutenant Colonel Oliver North.

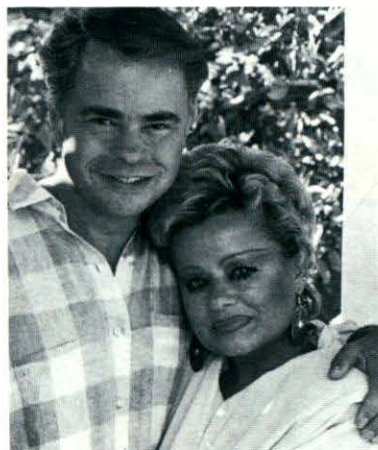

Ryan White, 16, is a hemophiliac who contracted AIDS. His health has improved thanks to the drug AZT. It's a stopgap measure, not a cure: "I feel good. Everything is fine."

"This is the nearest thing to a financial meltdown that I ever want to see." — John Phelan, New York Stock Exchange Chairman.

"We can get along. We can cooperate in this world — but always with our guard up." — President Reagan.

"Whatever I could do to make the minister's job easier, I did. They represented God, and I loved God so much." — Jessica Hahn.

"We were face-to-face, and those big ole eyes that just stared at me. It was a lot like Jessica was physically being born again. She had that same look on her face as a newborn." — Steven Forbes, paramedic who carried her out of the well.

"The chances of some terrorist doing something while we are steaming at twenty knotx is kind of slim, to say the least." — Christopher DeAngeles, sailor who was killed by the attack on the USS Stark.

"If anybody wants to put a tail on me, go ahead. They'd be very bored." — Gary Hart.

schools then through community groups and local TV ads. There was 8.5 million dollars contributed to AIDS research. This year it was realized that AIDS was not a moral issue — you do not get it because you're bad or you do bad things. Rather, AIDS is an epidemic to which one million people have been exposed; anyone is vulnerable to the virus.

This was also a year of triumph. For two and a half days, Americans had all eyes on Midland, Texas. There, eighteen month old Jessica McClure fell down an old well. Sometimes crying, sometimes singing, the toddler held on. Paramedics and volunteers worked for fifty-eight hours to free her. The ordeal was a confirmation of faith in human nature.

The year in sports was colorful. The football season opener consisted of a picket line. Once the NFL strike was finally over, the Washington Redskins defeated the Denver Broncos in a 42 to 10 Super Bowl victory. In baseball, the Minnesota Twins beat the St. Louis Cardinals in the seventh game of the World Series, 4-2. In basketball, Julius Irving, standing six feet, seven inches tall, retired at the age of thirty-seven. In his sixteen seasons, he had accumulated more than thirty thousand points. In boxing, Sugar Ray Leonard came out of retirement to take the World Middleweight Championship Belt away from Marvelous Marvin Hagler. And the 1988 Winter Olympics took place in Calgary, Alberta.

The world of entertainment brought forth many new stars. Saturday Night Live's Dana Carvey kept us laughing as the Church Lady. Also, Timothy Dalton premiered as the new James Bond in the movie, The Living Daylights. And Charlie Sheen's good looks drew many to the movie theaters. Singing her way to the top was fifteen year old Tiffany, number one on the charts with her single, "I Think We're Alone Now". Meanwhile, George Harrison made an amazing comeback.

Nineteen eighty-eight was an historical year. Although we are less than a drop in the great blue motion of the sunlit sea, it seems some of the drops did sparkle.

"I never thought of being anything but a singer." — Tiffany.

Picketing NFL players

Hidi and Hodi were the winter Olympic's mascots. "The Olympics should be the best party any of us have ever been to. If it's not, we may have missed the point." — Ralph Klein, Mayor of Calgary.

"Well isn't that special." — Church Lady, Dana Carvey.

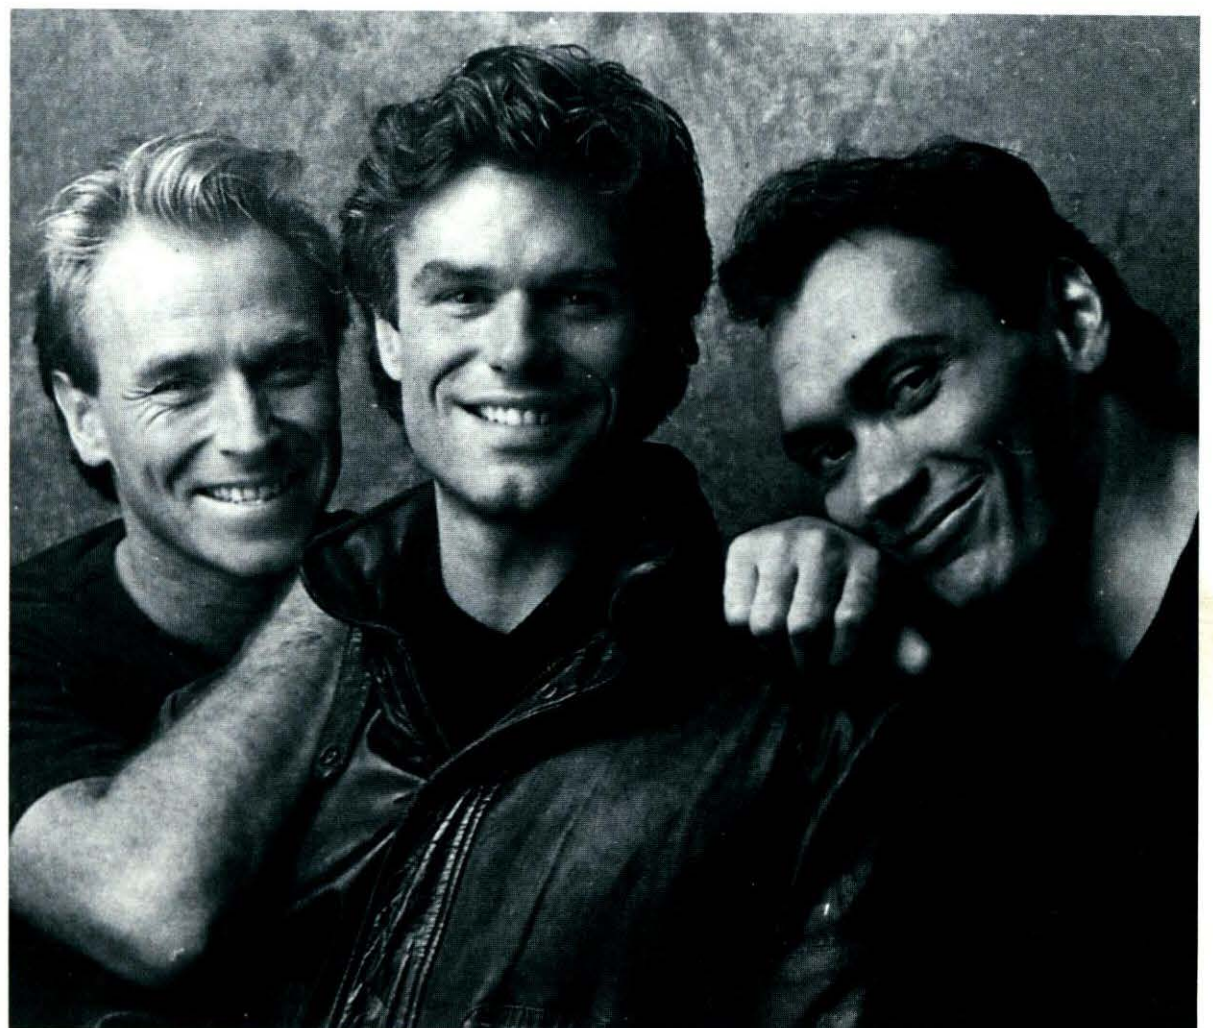

"Charlie Sheen has a coolness and remote quality that reminds me of James Dean." — Director, Oliver Stone.

Two Washington Redskin players rejoice after scoring a touchdown. According to Denver Bronco's quarterback, John Elway, "The Redskin's just pinned their ears back and before I knew it they were right on top of me."

"If only I had a brain." — Ray Bolger as the Scarecrow in the Wizard of Oz.

Dr. J. — Julius Irving.

L.A. Law's law men: Corbin Bernsen, Harry Hamlin, and Jimmy Smits.

ur Knight in Shining Armor

Donald Boucher has spent thirty-one years in public education, the last twenty-seven years at Chelmsford High School. First he was the Foreign Language Department Head and then accepted the position as Dean of Dickinson House. In this time, Dean Boucher has established the reputation for being a caring, involved individual who gives time, effort, energy, advice and, when needed, admonishment to students and their parents. His sense of justice, sense of humor and strong sense of pride in his students and their accomplishments are well known to all who have worked with or for him. He gives his time freely to organize successful Blood Drives, SADD Chapters, and German Exchange Programs. It is Don's nurturing and careful attention that has given his students and staff their large measure of success. Don will be missed by those who have relied on his sound judgement and sincere dedication. Dean Boucher's respite has been well-earned. All of us at CHS wish him health and happiness in his retirement.

Hmm — Mr. Boucher's famous "Dean" stance.

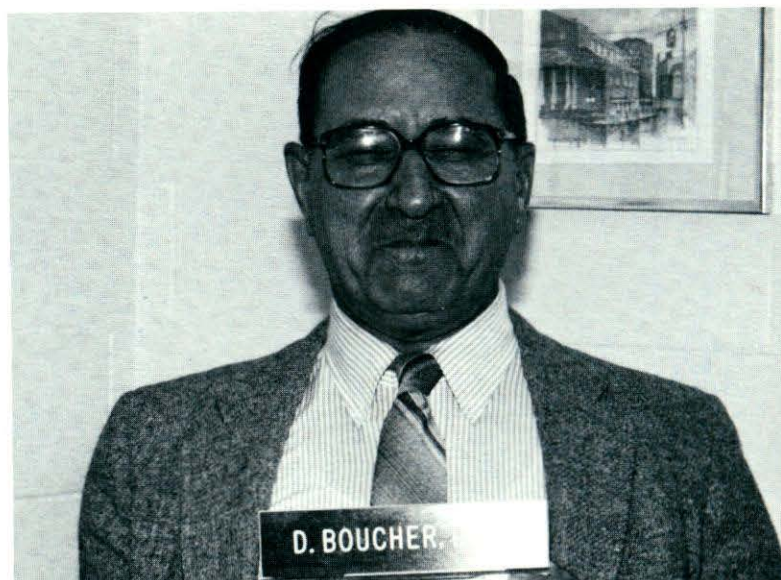

We wish you the best, Dean Boucher.

You're just so darn cute, Dean Boucher.

Take me, I'm yours.

Yes, Dean Boucher, you are terrific.

It takes lots of magic to run a proper classroom at Chelmsford High School. Only a true wizard can keep a classroom under control. The teachers of CHS use their magic every day in their quest for better education.

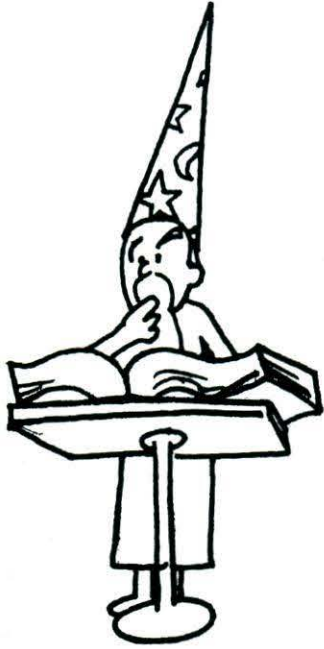

Wizards are wise, clever, and worthy of the highest praise. They demonstrate unusual learning, judgement and insight. In medieval times, their goal was to spread their wisdom. They achieved this by practicing unique teaching methods on some of the most naive and obstinate pupils. Over the years, students experienced a variety of situations, gaining valuable insight from their adventures. Wizards attempted to help students benefit from these experiences to better prepare them for the future.

Wizards often completed tasks that were seemingly impossible. For example, Merlin taught:

In order to regulate the mind,
one must first be sincere in one's intentions.
In order to be sincere in one's intentions, one must first increase one's knowledge.

Merlin knew that the hope for a virtuous human race lies in education. He had to be clever to teach the meek Arthur to be a mighty king. Similar to this, Chelmsford High School teachers must train unsuspecting students for the real world. Only a CHS teacher could accomplish the difficult assignment of molding 1,883 Arthurs and Gueneveres into kings and queens.

Festivals

What do students do to help them escape when they're blue? The mathematician who forgets square roots, the writer who forgets the proper word — what do they do when they're beset and besieged? However do they manage to shed their weary lot? How do they perk up their heart and get through? When all the doldrums begin, what keeps each student in his skin? They must have a system for turning tears to mirth. What do students do?

Festivals! In medieval times, they provided a place for people to reacquaint with old friends and meet new ones. Festivals! They allowed people to get away from their work and forget about their problems by having fun. Chelmsford High School has its own ways and means of providing respite. Activities! The students who participate in the extra curricular program escape from the routine and pressures of school life while still spending time with their friends and learning new ideas.

Chelmsford High School offers nearly fifty activities from which to choose. Whether you prefer indoors or out, spring or winter, there is reprieve for you. Hiking among the evergreens and skiing down mountain-tops will answer those called to nature. Strumming a favorite tune or attending the season's premiere of Nutcracker will appeal to those with a cultural sense.

The Chelmsford High School students are exceptional. They deal with the burdens of difficult classwork and demanding homework. From 7:25 A.M. to 1:50 P.M., their daily schedule is sounded by bells and monitored by teachers. They have earned the right to participate in a special interest. The activities program at CHS provides for the students the opportunity to step out, to go places and do things, to be festive!

Students Against

I had to learn the hard way.

A warm welcome from CHS to KISS 108.

It's for you, Dr. Newman.

SADD Week

SADD Awareness Week was sponsored and organized by CHS's local chapter of this very worthwhile organization. Intentionally timed just before winter break, students would go on vacation with the reminder that drinking mixed with driving is deadly.

SADD Awareness Week began with the showing of a powerful movie. In this broadcast, Bob Anastas, founder of SADD, powerfully professes to high school students his motto: "you drink- you drive- you die."

After the movie, the Contract of Life was distributed to every student in the school. This is a pact between the teenager and the parent (or guardian): if either the teenager or the parent were too drunk to drive safely, he/she would call to get sober transportation. This contract is not designed to say drinking is acceptable or unacceptable. It does not put one person in the position of judging another. Rather, it is a simple promise — if one signer is too drunk to drive, the other signer is available to help. SADD buttons were also given out with the contracts. Students wore the buttons for the rest of the week.

Statistics say that every twenty-three minutes one teenager dies from a drinking and driving related accident. The CHS students related to this shocking reality when fifteen classmates were pronounced "dead." Their faces were painted half black and half white. They could not speak or respond to anyone all day. This left a lasting effect on the students; the reality that one of their best friends could die was horrifying.

The last event of the week was when KISS 108 broadcast live from Chelmsford High School. They interviewed students, asking them to encourage their classmates not to drink and drive.

Student reactions to SADD Week were very meaningful. The students became powerfully aware of the hazards when one mixes drinking and driving. It made them realize that the students of CHS are not exempt — they, too, could be a statistic.

Drinking and driving kills!

Please don't drink and drive.

The Drama Club Presents . . .

Congratulations to the cast and crew members of Alice in Wonderland for a job well done!

Leading actress, Heather Westbrook, begins her journey.

The King and Queen of Hearts conspire against Alice.

A tea party that wasn't quite pleasant.

Are you looking for someone?

Kermit — eat your heart out!

They want you!

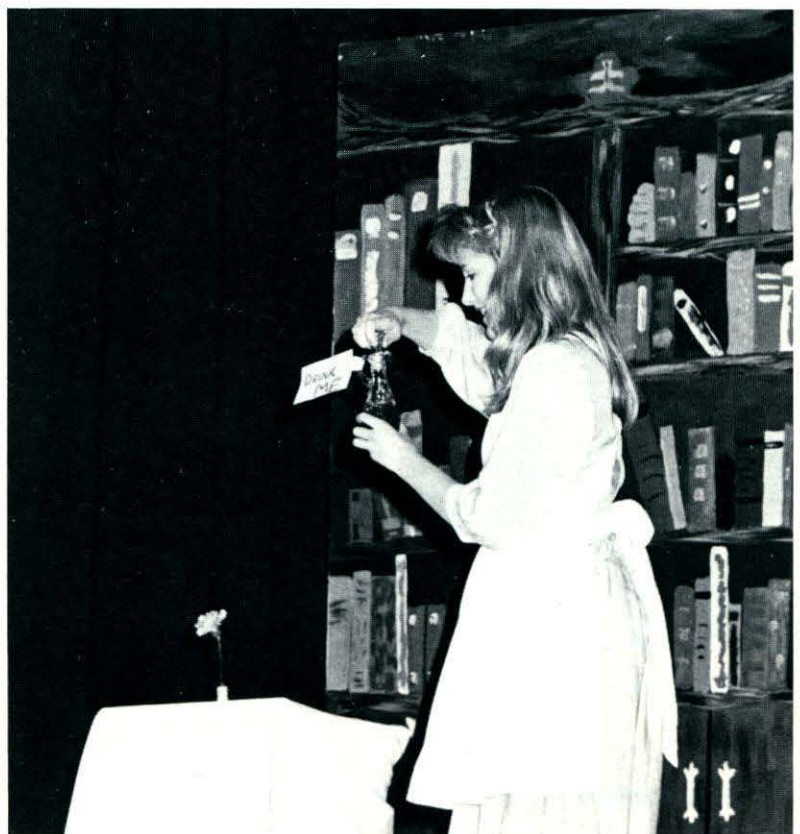

Hey, who's leading?

You make a nice looking caterpillar, Becky

The Mad Hatter tells it like it is.

Are you sure you want to do that?

On February 6, 1988, members of the CHS Drama Club performed Alice in Wonderland under the direction of Paul Ricciardi and Lynda DeMings. The production starred Heather Westbrook and a great supporting cast. The show was a magnificent success!

On weekends, holidays, and snow days, the stage crew made sets. This included costumes, as well as many other props which took much time and energy. On school days the actors and actresses rehearsed for two hours in a tiny classroom. Some days the stage was available; however, that was a difficult adjustment from a small classroom setting.

When production week finally arrived, life was chaotic for the cast members. Dress rehearsals for three and four hours exhausted everyone.

At last, after one and a half months of struggle and anticipation, it was opening day. The first show was at 10:00 A.M., which meant make-up call was at 8:00 A.M. Everyone was nervous; everything was hectic.

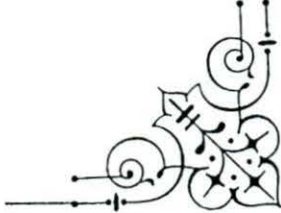

When the curtain rose, a masterful production came through. The audience was most receptive. After the first show, the cast only had an hour to relax, for the next show was at 10:00 A.M. Again the audience gave a standing ovation.

After the final performance, there were flowers, tears of joy, and heartwarming hugs. The cast was assured that they had put on a blockbuster.

J

Is every man capable of heroic action? Or is a hero someone special, someone whose wisdom, strength, and courage set him apart from the rest of humanity? The Chelmsford High School jousters pursue their quest as they were knights in shining armor. They show the prowess of their arms. They fight with all their might, but towards good will — never to be cruel, but to give mercy.

The jousters of Chelmsford High School are gracious. But they seldom suffer the great peril of defeat.

The men are courageous and brave. They need no magic spell to prevail in their tourneys. The female athletes are hardly damsels in distress. They raise their shields and take their swords, heroines in their perilous challenges. When the male and female jousters of Chelmsford High School march into the arena, they are fierce. No one can bring them to defeat. They fight on foot like ferocious lions. Any rival who comes near catches a grievous buffet.

At the end of every tourney, the Chelmsford joustier proclaims, "I will no reward have except knowing that I showed the utmost of my strength and claimed the crown for the great kingdom of Chelmsford High School."

Senior tri-captain Katy Wood struggles down the home stretch finishing her fourth season on the varsity squad.

These four key seniors take a moment to release their tension before racing. Dulgarian, Katy Wood, Anne Frame, Kara Marshall.

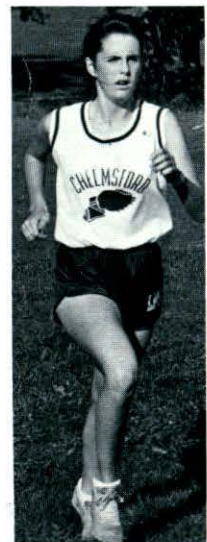

Senior tri-captain Sona Dulgarian races to the line, providing tremendous depth to the squad as her fourth year as a harrier.

Senior tri-captain Anne Frame tapes first in a race against Boxboro.

The talented maroon and white harriers toe the line at the first dual meet of their successful season.

Senior Anne Frames' dedication and hardwork earned her the honor of being named MVP for 3 years as well as runner of the year for the past two years. Always leading the pack, Anne's valuable leadership qualities were an important part of the team's success.

One of Chelmsford High Schools' most talented squads, the 1987 Girls Cross-Country Team, was virtually unbeatable in the MVC. Led by veteran tri-captains Sona Dulgarian, Anne Frame, and Katy Wood, the lions accumulated an overall record of 9-0-0 as well as an MVC Championship title.

At the conclusion of the season, seniors Frame and Dulgarian both recorded personal bests on the Lions home turf in a clash with Andover High. Their times were 14:15 and 15:50, respectively.

The Lions were also well represented on the All-Conference team as seniors Frame and Wood joined siblings Kathy and Patty Gavin to achieve this honor. Also contributing to the Lions unblemished record were sensational junior Amy Labrecque who received honorable mention, junior standout Rachel Warren, and much improved Lisa Sternstrom. Head Coach Jack Lang had only praise for his fine athletes, "This year the team really pulled together, despite injuries to several key runners, we were able to defend our title."

The intensity of the starting line is visible on the faces of Anne and Katy as they leap at the sound of the starting gun.

Junior Kathy Gavin is excited about the outcome of the race.

The 1987 C.H.S. Cross-Country Team was able to capture the Merrimack Valley Conference Championship while turning in an undefeated record of 11-0-0. The Lions were a very talented group this year as they blew away their league opponents.

The Lions were winners of their race at the Manhattan Invitational with a total of 91 points. At the Northern Area Regional Meet, the Lions pulled off a team victory as they scored 83 points. In the Our Lady of Providence meet, the Lions were second with 93 points in a race that featured the best teams in new England. At the Eastern Massachusetts State Championship, the Lions were third with 134 points.

The 1987 squad was led by senior co-captains Eric Beauchesne and junior John Carson as they both ran to personal records on the Lions 3 mile course with times of 14:44 and 14:42, respectively. Brian Cox joined these runners on All-Conference team as he clocked a personal best time of 15:23. Junior Jayme Fishman and sophomore Steve Kelts were newcomers on varsity. Both were very successful and were named to the All-Star team. Also providing the Lions with depth and experience were Juniors John Duggan, Mike Murphy and senior Jim Duff.

The Lions' friendship and leadership have proved to help their training as they finished an excellent season. The team thanks Coach Durkin for his valuable time and dedication, but perhaps most importantly, for his everlasting friendship.

Senior Heidi Ayer concentrates on handling the ball. This is only one of the times that she set up to score. Heidi was a powerful offensive player for the Lions this year. Thanks, Heidi for all your dedication and hard work.

Junior Julie Sacchetti is a promising returning veteran for next years squad. An eager and astute player, Julie helped spur the team on to a championship year. Good luck next season, too.

The Varsity Field Hockey Team finished their season with a sense of accomplishment. Through ability and team work, they had a final record of 10-2-6. Considered second in the MVC, they made it to the semi finals of the North sectionals.

Senior Maura Devaney did an outstanding job in goal for the Lions, helped greatly by defensive seniors Kelly Fletcher, Anne McCaffrey, Stephanie Babin, and Cheryl Yoder. Strong offense was provided by seniors Joanne Smith, Alex Robinson, and Heidi Ayer.

The foundation of the team's success was unity and friendship. This, combined with the leadership of Coach Dick, made the team proud of their success.

Ned Lisi is stunned by the immobile ball!

Varsity Coach Fadden's dedication and patience has always been a valuable asset to the soccer program at C.H.S.

Senior Scott Nussbaum provided valuable talent to the Lions regime.

Bob Cullen was leaps and bounds above his competitors as he heads the ball airborne!

Senior Keith Whitney propels himself towards the adversary's net.

The Chelmsford Varsity Soccer season was comparable to that of a roller coaster ride. As the car rolled toward the State Championship, the Chelmsford players were thrown about in a tough division. Half way through the season, the car lumbered into a gully which took them out of the race for states. Then a sudden twist occurred. After many one goal defeats, the only direction was up. The team gained speed, and rose quickly. They shocked the #6 team in the states, Billerica, with a 1-1 tie which left the Indians shaking their heads. Then, the Lions fought for their pride and tied the tourney bound Westford at the close of the season.

Throughout the frustrating season the team never gave up. They remained united under the leadership of co-captains Bob Cullen and Steve Sanzos. The team would like to thank Coach Fadden for his dedication, and wishes the best of luck to next year's squad.

Senior Captain Bob Cullen provided both talent and leadership to Coach Fadden's hardworking team.

Allison and Heather say, "Four hands are better than two."

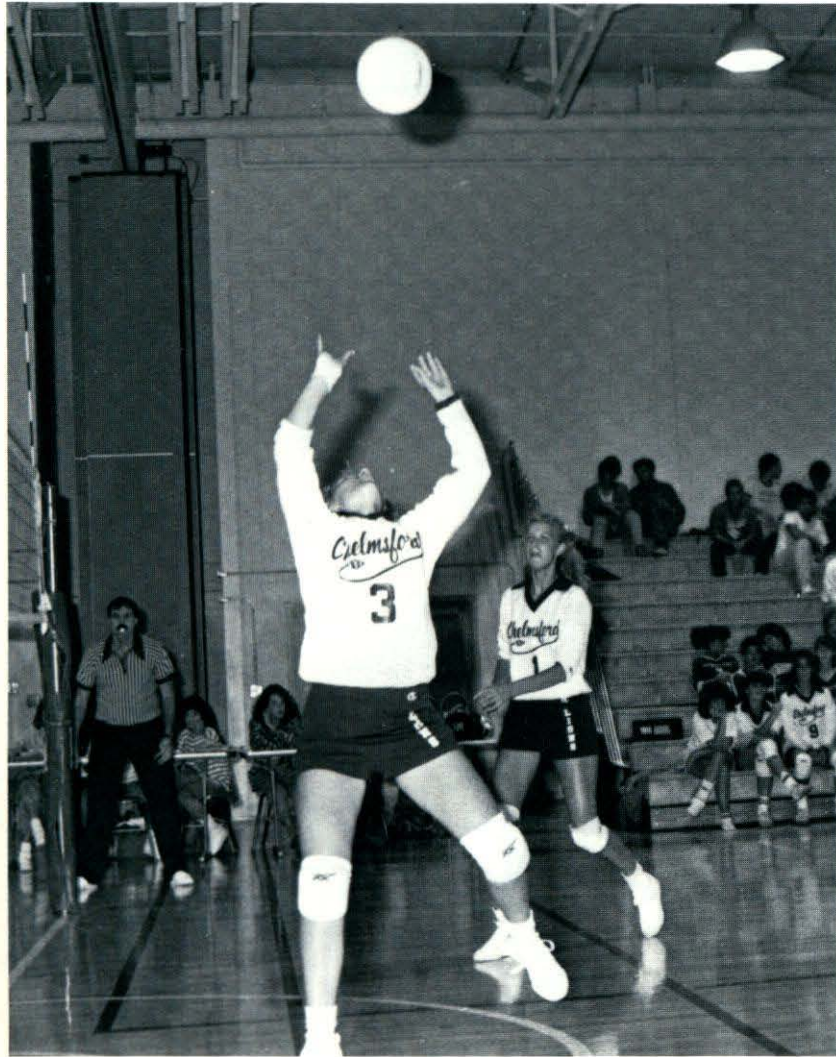

Missie Westgate, Heather Cody, and Allison Aronie led the Lions to a successful season. Understanding the concepts of the sport and knowing the need for teamwork were key elements to this team's winning schedule. Nice job, girls!

The girls volleyball team has consistently been a major contributor to the excellence of Chelmsford High School athletics. This year's team has maintained this tradition even though many of the players were inexperienced. Seniors, Allison Aronie, Danielle LaCroix, Kathy Scannell and Missie Westgate paced the underclassmen to another successful season while other team members accepted the challenge and proved to be superior assets.

The sport of volleyball relies on teamwork and communication. Each player must fulfill her responsibility in order for the next player to execute her moves properly. This year's squad was able to accomplish this, affording them their success.

Several team members rush to the aid of an injured player.

Senior Captain John Murphy asks the spectators for their opinion on his last play.

The 1987-1988 maroon and white basketball squad was most definitely a CLOSE-knit group of players.

Senior Steve Curran is sidelined with an injury. Trainer "Doc" tends to his medical needs.

Senior Joe Beauregard says it all with his expression.

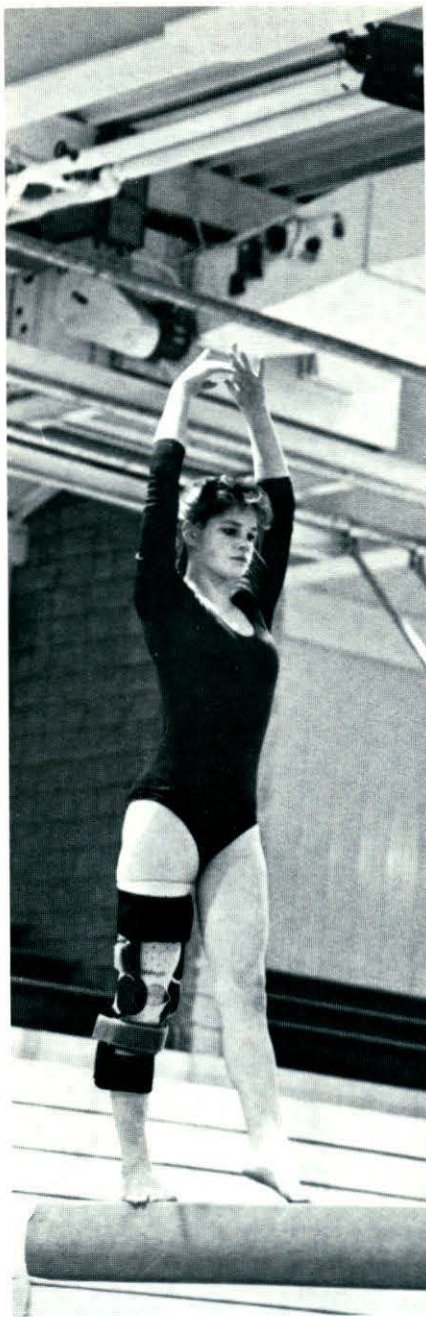

Senior Derek Robinson was a valuable member of this year's talented Lion regime as he frequently stunned his opponents with his skillful maneuvers.

The Boys Varsity Basketball Team is coming off a great 1986-1987 season. It was a season which saw the Lions win the Merrimack Valley Conference for the first time in 20 years. This year's team hopes to win the conference title for the second year in a row, an achievement they have every right to feel confident about. They are a special team who has given the audience plenty of thrilling memories.

Senior Captain Chandra Cole demonstrates her poise and skill on the balance beam. Even injured, Chandra performs gracefully.

Senior Alexandra Robinson is performing a humorous routine on the beam.

Seniors Alexandra and Julie Webber have a right to smile about their winning performances.

Freshman Stephanie Incatasciato is a shining prospect for future gymnastics at C.H.S.

Junior Julie Sachetti dances her way across the mat. Her routines were always a lovely display of athletics and elegance.

Freshman Tracey LaFlamme is a sparkplug for the young team.

Senior Julie Webber is a strong performer in the floor exercise for the maroon and white squad.

Senior Captains Bill Avery and Richard Gorham led the Lions with their experience and leadership. Both Captains are three year varsity starters.

Bill is in deep concentration as he anticipates the defenders' next move.

Dave, Are you shooting a Billerican?!

Captain Bill dances to the sound of the cheering spectators.

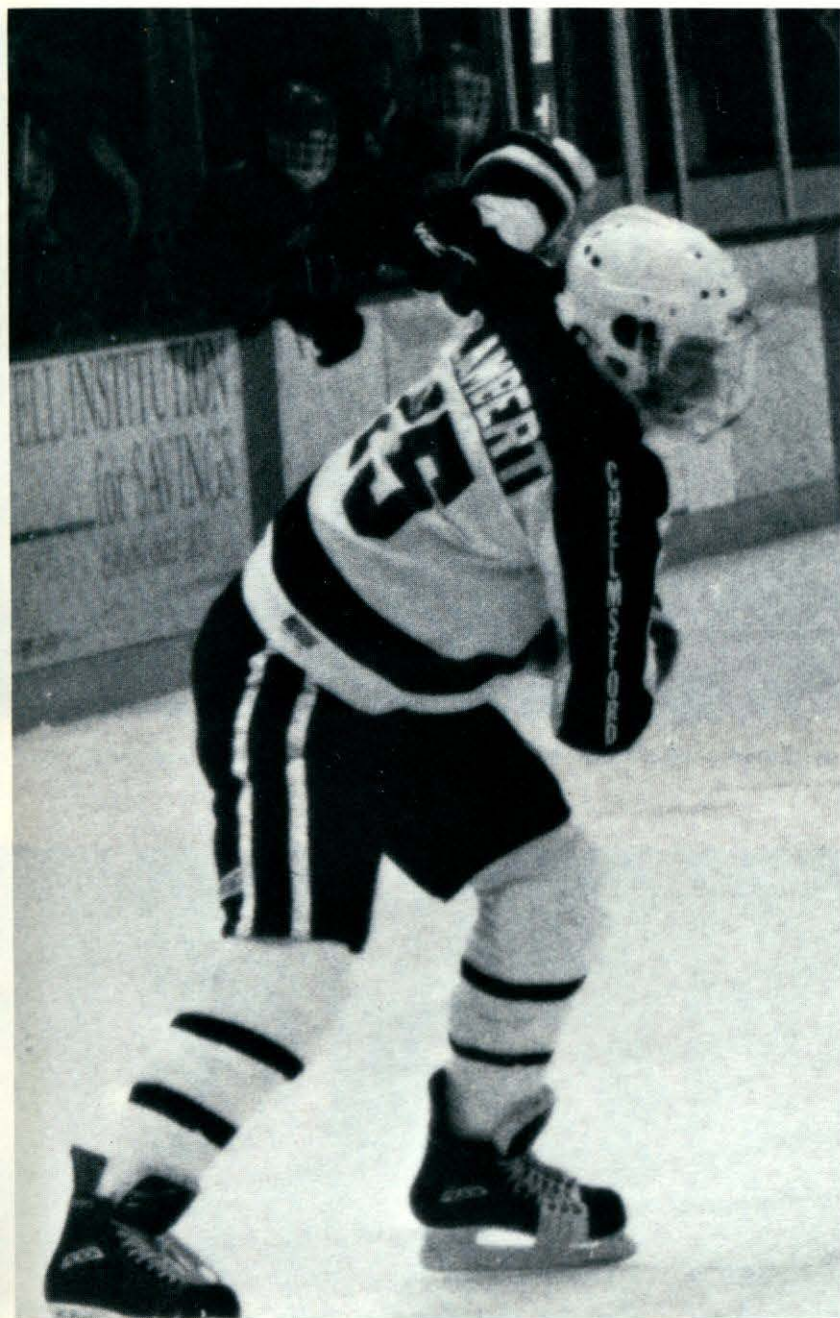

Senior Phil Heinrich can't seem to find the puck.

Junior Dave Balan begs Bill for a dance.

The 1987-1988 hockey team was a major force in the Merrimack Valley Conference. Co-Captain Bill Avery constantly shot at the opponents, scoring goal after goal. Also doing an excellent job were forwards Gary Lafreniere, Matt Tramonte, Jeff Stagnone, and Tim Goode. The strong defense was led by co-captain Rich Gorham, Dave Lambert, and Bill Underwood. Also emerging with great goaltending talent was sophomore Greg Hirsch. Because of their team effort, the Lions reigned supreme.

Freshman Todd Lawrence, a future swimming star

The Boys Swim Team continued its impressive strokes as it boasted an unblemished score of 6-0 in MVC dual meets. The Champs went on to capture a fourth place showing at the sectionals. They were led by the record breaking performances of Sean Gouldson, Josh Blagg, Steve Scaplen and Dan Benson as they shattered the previous school record in the 200 medley relay. Super sophomore Sean Gouldson showed perfect form as he earned record status in both the 100 yard freestyle and the 100 yard backstroke. All in all, the team, under the very devoted direction of Coach Al Thomas, streamlined their way to another successful season.

Jackie Harris demonstrates her strength in the shot put.

Stephanie lends support to her fellow tracksters.

Sophomore standout Patty Gavin is a future star of the track team.

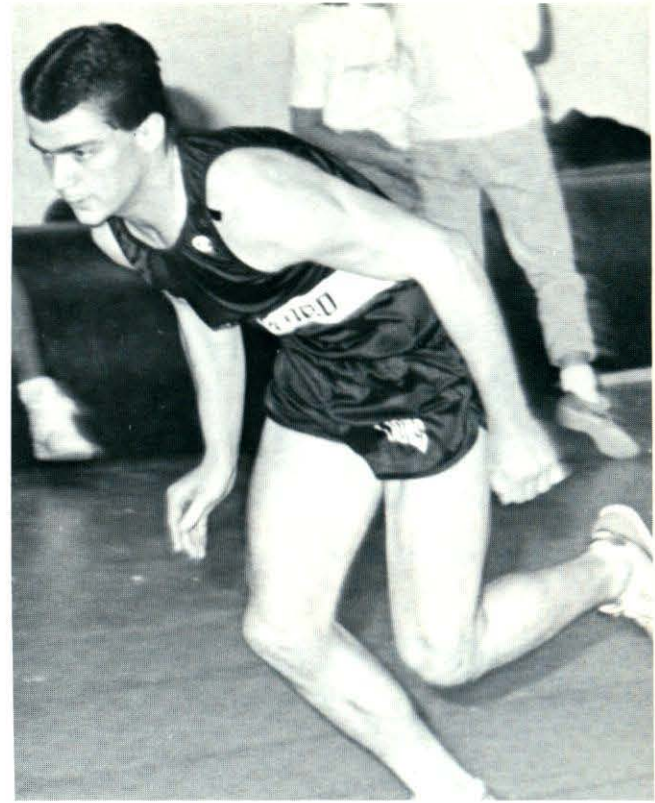

The 1987-88 Girls' Indoor Track Team was led by senior captains Anne Frame, Jackie Harris, Kara Marshall and Stephanie Pollock en route to their successful dual meet season. The Lions recorded a respectable 4-2 record in a competitive field of teams from the MVC. Certainly, the maroon and white harriers were a step ahead of all area schools in spirit. Head Coach Jack Lang and Assistant Coach Jeff Doherty were the key to the team's success. The athletes value the hardwork and dedication of their leaders.

Senior Sean Feeney watches his teammates anxiously.

Senior Matt Hall was a force in the high jump.

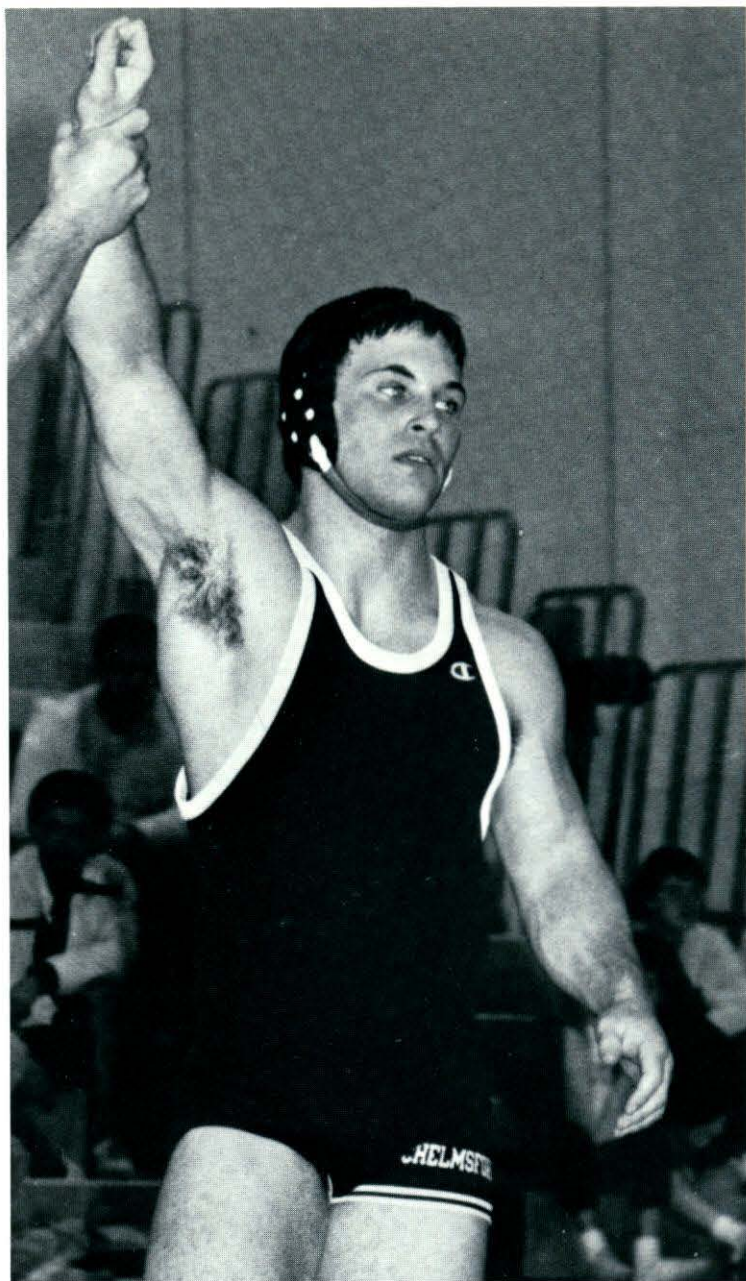

Sophomore Mark Swiackey is anxious to begin his race.

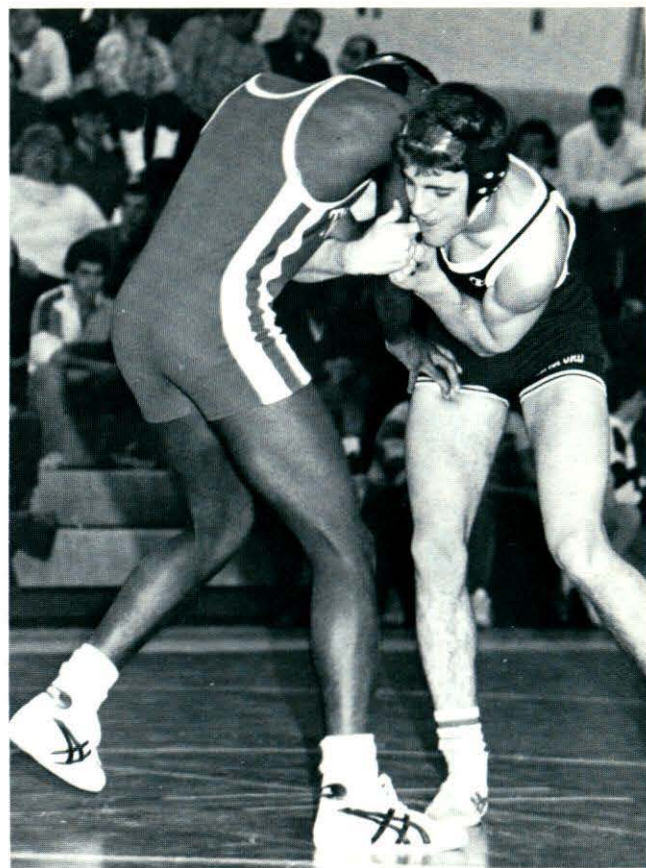

The senior captains Eric Beauchesne and Jim Duff led the roaring Lions to a runner-up spot in MVC competition. Under the leadership of Coaches Bill Christman and Jim Durkin, the Lions accumulated 24 points in the State Class A meet, earning them a fourth place showing. Senior standout Eric Beauchesne ran to a second place in the class meet with a personal best of 9:38.7 Junior Vernon Willis, another CHS star, captured a runner up medal in the 50 yard hurdles (6.6 seconds) and high jump (6'8") in the same meet. The Boys Indoor Track Team put on starring performances throughout the season, and they did so in high style.

Senior Shawn McCarthy screams, "No pain, no gain!"

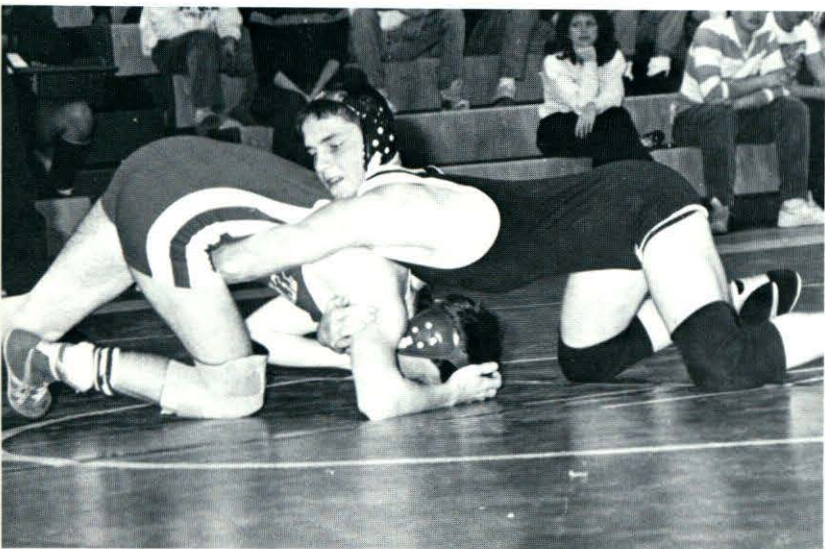

Senior Jim Harrington is confident about his victory.

Junior Dave Mills used both strength and determination to defeat his opponent.

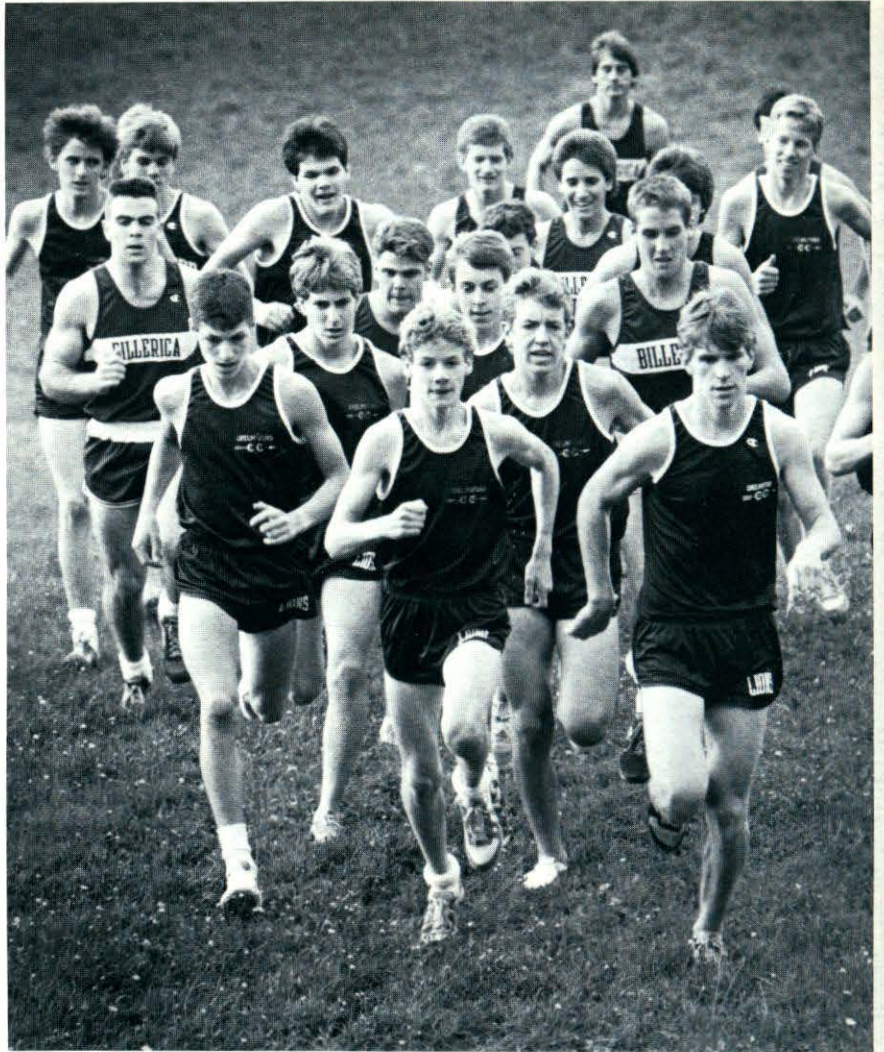

Senior Captain Tim King led the Lions to another perfect record.

Junior Ned Lisi measures his opponent's waist.

The 1988 maroon and white wrestling squad easily took down their opponents, under the direction of Coach Bruce Rich. Senior Captains Jim Harrington, Tim King, and Eric Froese proved to be integral members of the competitive regime, again one of the finest in the state. Successful pinners were varsity seniors Steve Cahill, Kenny Hughes, Shawn McCarthy, and Bob Brackett. There were also two outstanding juniors on the team, Dave Mills and Ned Lisi. Coach Bruce Rich praised his hard-working crew, "This year we had a great bunch of kids. They worked hard and deserved their great success."

Treasury

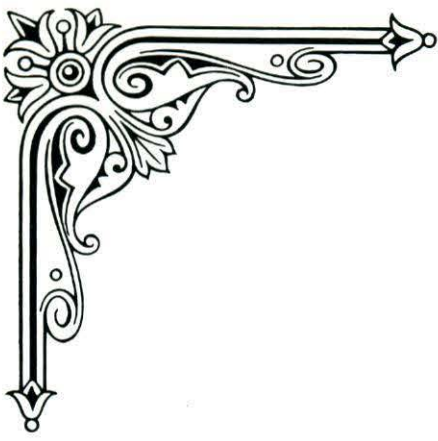

The world of medieval England is much like our modern world. Money was a part of their society, much as it is a part of ours. Whether coins were used to buy extravagant jewels and magnificent castles, or much needed nourishment and adequate shelter, it was a vital requirement of life. Today, we still need money for survival and luxury. This is particularly true of The 1988 Lion. Our publication would not have been possible without the help of the Chelmsford community.

The funding for this yearbook is gathered in many ways. Throughout the summer, the editors of The Lion 'pound the pavement' as they attempt to sell advertisements to local merchants, professionals, and large businesses. The post office is flooded with please to the parents of graduating seniors who might wish to purchase a "best wishes" or congratulatory note to their successful seniors. Subscriptions to the yearbook are sold to students and faculty at CHS. Subscriptions may also be sold to local businesses as a form of advertisement for the town of Chelmsford. Lastly, various fund raisers are held by The Lion staff members; items such as candy bars and candy canes are sold during the school day.

The 1988 Lion exists not only as a part of Chelmsford High School, but also as a part of the Chelmsford community. We are grateful to all of our sponsors. It is because of them that we are able to create a book holding fond memories of CHS life.

We wish to thank every advertiser and parent who has helped to make this publication a success. Because of your endowments, the Class of 1988 will always be able "to call back yesterday, bid time return."

Senior Will

- I, Tracey Adley, leave Mr. Durkin with many thanks for listening to all my problems and hoping that he meets Cybil Shepard.
- I, Lea Agostino, leave CHS with a big sigh of relief!
- I, Todd Ahern, leave lots of luck to my little brother.
- I, Patricia Amiraull, leave this school, this town, this state happily. From myself and the rest of my clan, farewell forever.
- I, William G. Amundson, leave Jen, Lauren, and Emilie their senior year to come, with love.
- I, Brian G. Anderson, leave all of my car problems, speeding tickets, electrical and radiator problems and accidents to anyone who will take them.
- I, Michael A. Angle, leave Mr. Hazzard and Mr. Bernier all of the rock and roll and all the weights they pushed on me.
- I, Allison B. Aronie, leave all my thanks to Dana Howe, and all the luck in the world to next year's volleyball team.
- I, Heidi E. Ayer, wish Andrew Lynch the best of luck in his remaining years at CHS.
- I, Laura J. Bachini, leave to Mr. Leite a cat and a box of Kleenex to make up for all the paper towels I took.
- I, Deborah A. Bair, leave CHS leading a more spontaneous life and loving every minute of it!
- I, Roosevelt L. Baker, leave a new homeroom to Mr. Doherty.
- I, Shannon Barry, leave CHS continuing the quest to find a real man, not just a MAP. And I quit the Pumpkin Patrol for I always get caught.
- I, Allison Barzyk, LEAVE!!
- I, Eric G. Beauchesne, leave Dave Beaton some respect.
- I, Michelle Beaudoin, leave forever. Thank God.
- I, James T. Belanger, leave the other classes a wonderful next year.
- I, Karen M. Belanger, leave to Skipper the S.S. Minnow and a class which respects him.
- I, David Bellemore, leave Scott N. a watch so he will be on time for once. I also leave Kevin J. a real job so we can respect him.
- I, Melissa Bellville, leave Sherry Ryan a map to find her way back to Chelmsford and I leave Tina Hapshe all the unwritten 5's.
- I, Nicole Berard, leave Alicia Sandra's wardrobe.
- I, Cheryl A. Berkov, leave everything to David Luro because his sister forgot to leave him anything last year.
- I, Kristyn R. Berube, leave all my absentee notes to all who wish to read them.
- I, Susan L. Betourney, leave the Betourney legacy in Chelmsford High to be carried on by my mom.
- I, Mike J. Bettencourt, leave my TWA's to Mr. Bernier to do with whatever he wants.
- I, Jessica Blagg, wish good luck to Josh in the four years to come.
- I, Laura E. Booth, leave all those early morning skating sessions to my younger team members; I also leave my slammin times at swackers house.
- I, Paul Bouley, leave cheering at CHS hockey games to Mike Lupoli, because he's the only person with a bigger mouth than me.
- I, Kenneth Bowser, leave!
- I, Robert T. Brooks, leave CHS to my own dark path of my future, unsure and alone, searching for a light of hope that will bring me peace.
- I, Jennifer A. Brown, leave Carol Rancourt her orange face.
- I, Mark J. Buliszak, hope that someone will take over the photo club.
- I, Frederik Bull, leave my "top CPU sucker" position on the Vax to anyone who likes to bomb the system.
- I, Joelle M. Carnevale, leave Julie Monteiro a cure for the laughing disease, so when she drinks milk it won't come out her nose.
- I, Colleen Carragher, leave Pam my eternal friendship. Kris my license, #93 to whomever wants him, Krista to Brian and Monty lots of love.
- I, Marsha Lynn Casella, leave all my good times at the BAC, BMHS, and the CHS.
- I, Debra M. Catania, leave Steve Roberts the top shelf of my locker and all his jokes about my height!
- I, Eric S. Chin, leave night walks, a full moon, a quiet spot in the woods, and finally, a moonlit black box to anyone who can find them.
- I, David Chute, leave my "genius" accounts and the password to the game account to next year's Senior ACSL team.
- I, Thomas Clayton, leave CHS with a thought: Do you live alone or by yourself... CHS 88 rules.
- I, Christopher F. Cocchiario, leave my map of Chelmsford to the underclassmen so that they can find all the parties.
- I, Anita Marie Coconis, leave Scott our gum collection and some great memories!
- I, James M. Conrad, leave all my friends, remembering that "Our Memories" rule and so do we. May the best of our memories remain in our hearts!
- I, Alicia M. Contardo, leave Christina with no ride to school and no morning arguments. Also, I leave Nicole with "Sandi" memories.
- I, Paula C. Corsetti, unwillingly leave Garfield to whoever stole him. I also leave my locker to Sharyn.
- I, Sara Councilman, leave a lot of excellent times had during high school.
- I, Kyle M. Cripps, leave nothing but memories to CHS.
- I, Cherie Crocker, leave Chelmsford High with a great big smile!
- I, Robert P. Cullen, leave my good times at CHS to Jill and Johnie.
- I, Cliff H. Cunningham, leave nothing. Thank you.
- I, Thomas E. Curcio, leave Jill E. Jamer all my love. To Roland Snyder and Tim Coffey I leave lots of luck.
- I, Krista K. Curran, leave to Pam an empty locker and our memories, to Keith the best of luck, to Brian all my love, and happiness to all my friends!
- I, Alan C. Curry, leave good luck to Peggy and Lorrie and a big thanks to Mr. Pasquale and Mrs. Silva!
- I, Shelly Daggett, leave Ms. Miniuks a place to hide in the smoking area.
- I, Deborah Daly, leave Hawthorne and someone else to get Mrs. Mahoney's salad. Bye to Dickinson-4 years!
- I, Kevin Daniels, leave to the class of "88" my chair in the caf.
- I, Abigail Davenport, leave good luck in their senior year to solve all their boy problems without me to Kathy, Annie, Lynda, Sam, and Stacy.
- I, Tracey A. Davis, give back to Jackie Harris the "two seconds" she lost.
- I, Keith A. Deely, leave my singing to anyone who wants to take it over.
- I, Terri L. DeMeuse, leave Dickie Luce with a real middle maidenname... Egbert.
- I, Denise Desmarais, leave as the last Desmarais to finally graduate.
- I, Scott Roger Desrochers, leave everlasting happiness to Laura. To Sandi, Leslie, and Julie, I leave great thanks.
- I, Deann P. Desrosiers, finally leave my locker to all the underclassmen who have already been using it.
- I, Maura E. Devaney, leave Jen Lamb all those diet Coke jokes!
- I, Kristen M. DeYoung, leave CHS without looking back.
- I, Philip DiGirolamo, leave CHS with a blank thought.
- I, Brad A. Dillman, leave Ribcage a roll of film and Jon G. the legacy of Buddha.
- I, Jennifer A. Dobbins, leave three years of good luck to Kenny and two years of luck to Missi.
- I, Bryan Dolan, leave Chelmsford High School forever!
- I, Wende A. Donahue, leave the soprano 2 line, the chorus room and Mr. Rondina at last.
- I, Jeanne F. Doody, leave Tammy Peterson 2 tickets to Miami — one for herself, the other for anyone but Bill.
- I, Michelle Dougherty, leave my algebra book to Mr. Bradman.
- I, Kristen E. Dow, leave Chelmsford High with a sigh of relief.

Why smile, Paul and Brian? You have three more years of cafe food left.

Our history has been imprinted.

Might for right. Right for right. Justice for all! A Round Table which has no corners, just as the world has none-a table without boundaries between nations who would sit to feast. This was King Arthur's quest. It all began when he, as a young boy, unfixed a sword from a miraculous stone after others had failed, thus proving himself the man who was to be king. He called his sword Excalibur. Fourteen hundred years have passed since the days of Camelot, but our hopes for peace have not changed. The 1988 Lion staff wishes that this memory book will be your magical Excalibur, a gentle journey back to your high school days. Let this yearbook recall your wisp of glory, your brief, shining moments of youth and idealism.

It all started on September 10, 1987, when we stepped into our reign as Kings and Queens of Chelmsford High School. Even though we had already experienced a few senior activities-the Cotillion in May, senior pictures in August-these were a mere taste of the excitement that was to come. Yes, today we were officially seniors.

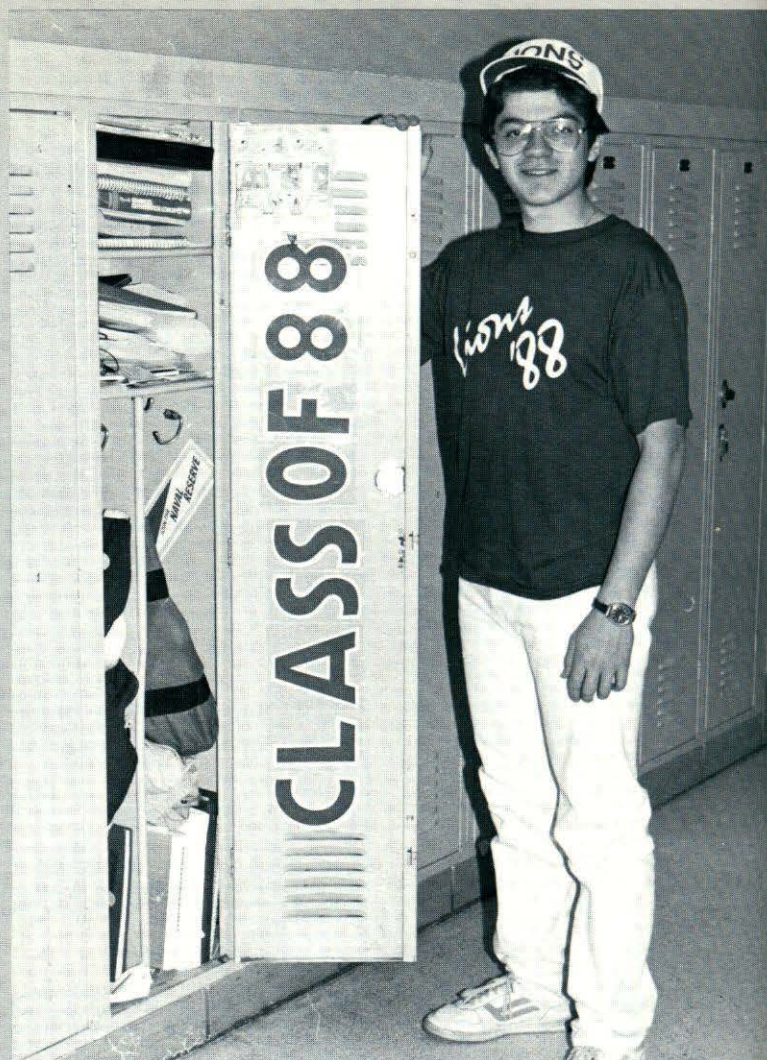

Our first event of the year was the Morp. Dressed in our acid-washed jeans and tie die shirts, the Class of '88 showed its unity. Attendance was strong. Our royal crowns were a nice fit.

October 24 was the next major event-our Halloween Dance. Remember the uproar when rumors started about a football game being scheduled for the same night? Then we learned it was all a hoax. Once that turmoil was squelched, the seniors, dressed in our cutest and scariest, came to the Cafe II dungeon. Life-size cereal boxes, a convent of nuns, Dracula, an entourage of skeletons, and fruits of the loom were among the haunting guests. As the dance came to a close, the seniors held hands for a Cafe II size kickline. It was only October, and already we were building memories to last a life time.

As the days started to get shorter and colder, students became restless. Cabin fever was setting in. We needed a change. For better or worse, it came! The National School Bus Company, in its first contract year with Chelmsford, went on strike. Over two thousand kids were left stranded at their bus stops. Parking stickers became gold. Traffic jams prevailed. In their top coats and hats, the school administration policed the traffic patterns, trying to keep the entrances and exits free-flowing. After a week of confusion, the bus strike was no longer a nice change of pace. It had become a real nuisance. Yet, typical of how we have been taught to solve problems, good came from it. As a town, we united. Numerous car pools were organized, neighbor helping neighbor. No longer was there a distinction between grade levels. If you needed transportation, it was available from a fellow student or nearby parent. Absenteeism was negligible. These three weeks proved that we were a student body who truly cared about each other.

While the bus drivers were arguing money, the seniors were busy raising money. The Magazine Drive had come to town, and the Class of '88 came out in full force. There was nearly unanimous participation. We sold over $46,000 worth of magazines, a new school record. The profits from this sale would certainly reduce the cost of senior week events.

As the last subscriptions were filled out, we worried that life at CHS would get dull. But the football team came to our rescue. Our Lions had made it to the State Superbowl. Unfortunately, with the excitement came an element of disappointment. The game was scheduled the same day as S.A.T.'s. Some of our star grid-ironers would be pushing a #2 pencil instead of throwing the pigskin. Many of the fans would be spending the day in quiet thought instead of screaming cheers. Could there possibly be a solution to this problem? Would the New England Patriots cancel their Sunday game at Sullivan Stadium for us? Would the hierarchy at Princeton, New Jersey allow us to post-

Is this class spirit or what?

Smile Dave, you're on candid camera.

Amy won't let

Three cheers for the Class of '88!

seniorities get to her. Right?

Herein may be seen many joyous and pleasant ebents, noble and renowned arts of chivalry, courtesy, humanity, friendliness, hardiness and love.

pone the exams? It was time for people in high places to make some important phone calls. From the round-table discussions came a compromise. The football players were able to reschedule their S.A.T.'s. Even though the fans still had to take the Achievements, they were with the team in spirit. And this support must have been strongly felt because the Chelmsford Lions squished the Gloucester Fishermen, 21 to 14.

It was already December. Nineteen eighty seven had come to a close. We rang in the new year with style at the Winter Magic holiday dance. Everyone was dressed in their finest. Our chatter was nostalgic. We were already reminiscing about our high school days. This was really the year of our class. Only six more months. Hello, 1988.

NO! We can't study anymore!

We have journeyed hopefully and met true success.

Much of winter vacation was spent on college applications and financial aid forms. That done, it was time to study for midyear exams. Despite the pressure, there was great joy in knowing we would never, ever have to take them again. Once over, it was senioritis time. Why worry anymore? The fate of our lives was sealed in envelopes until April. So we might as well party!

Mother nature helped us with R and R. Snow storms averaged once a week, and the snow days stacked up. Seniors loved it because our last day of school was May 27, no matter how many or how bad the Nor'ester! While the underclassmen complained about spending the 4th of July in the hot classrooms, the seniors celebrated having the beaches to themselves.

Soon the days grew longer and the warm sun became a familiar sight. The terrain had transformed from snow white to grass green. Spring fever, coupled with an already advanced case of senioritis, made us antse. We wanted to break loose. A day at the beach would be the perfect cure. That must be why Senior Skip Day is a national event. Although scheduled locally, every senior across the country needs one dose. It is the best miracle cure known to twelfth graders. Once recuperated, it was time for the magic of Senior Week to cast its spell.

May 31 to June 3, Yearbook Assembly to Senior Banquet, we had the time of our lives. Our week culminated on Graduation Day, June 5, 1988, where the speakers reminded us that hard work and determination are a winning combination.

In the course of time, our end at Chelmsford High School had been

We danced our hearts out at the Morp.

Curtis works hard

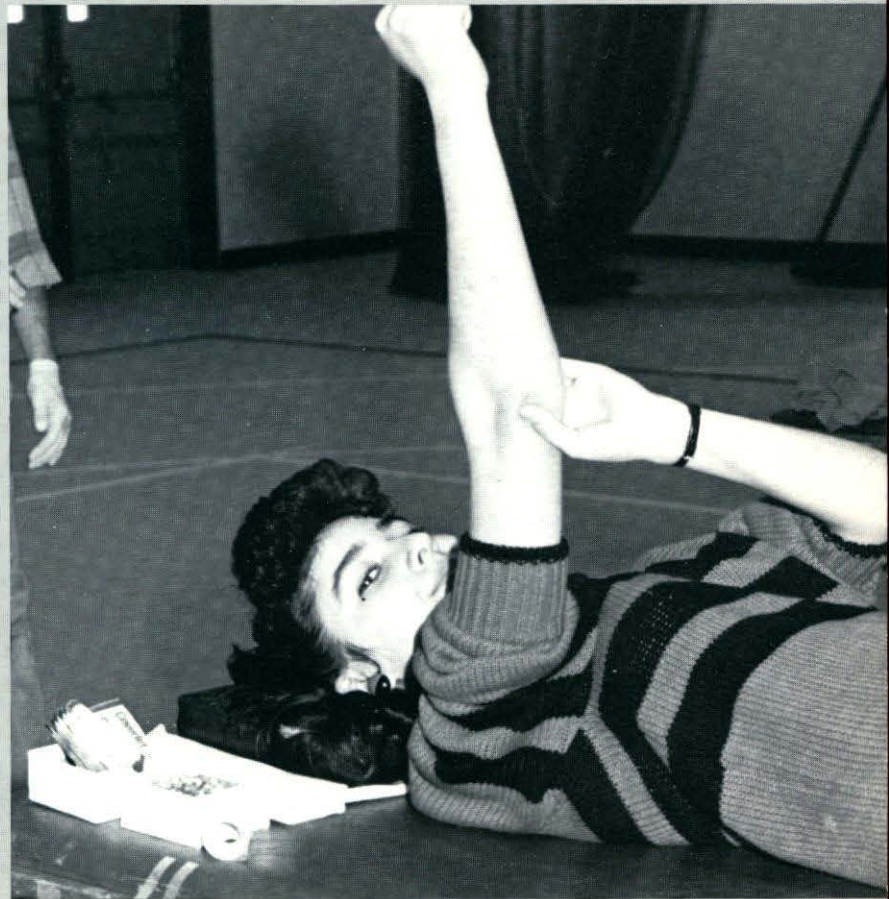

Senior year, friends forever.

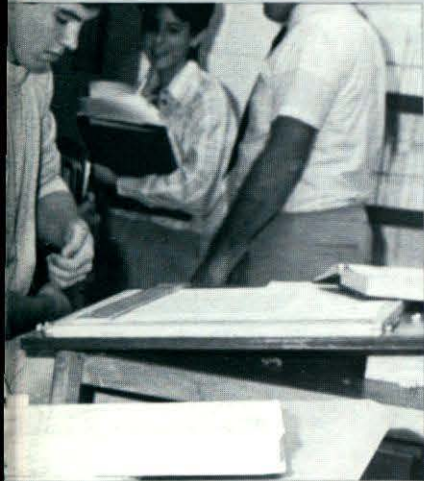

Thanks for all the memories Chelmsford High.

Come on, watcha got behind your back?

Can I put my arm down? All the blood's been drained out.

at drafting a new skyscraper.

Say Hi, Dave.

No man in this world hath lived
better than we have,
to achieve what we have done.

achieved. It had been a wonderful journey. Now we begin new quests. Will you promise to be careful of yourselves? Will you try to remember that you are vessels of peace, and that when things go wrong, the whole world depends on you?

You are all candles. Remember to raise your hands to shield yourself from the wind. Endure the flickering; never allow yourselves to burn out. Arthur believed:

As the candles gleam,
Comes the sunrise of your dreams.
The world is bright,
And all is right,
For life is merry and gay.
It is always: THE BEGINNING

You can't hide girls, college applications must be filled out.

Special Thanks to . . .

Well, this is it — the end of our quest. During our four years at Chelmsford High, we have learned, adapted, discovered, and achieved. Most of all, we have created memories — memories that will last a lifetime. As you view this book, enjoy the treasured recollections The 1988 Lion staff has recreated for you. Cherish the good times and learn from the bad. Now, though, it is time for us to build new castles and rule new kingdoms.

The 1988 Lion — written, published and delivered — has been our literary quest. It was accomplished through the cooperative efforts of thirteen very devoted editors: Assistant Editors-in-Chief, Melea Madsen and Mary Dukakis; Sports Editors, Julie Peters and Anne Frame; Activities Editors, Debra Catania and Alyssa Soracco; Underclass Editors, Lorrie Stewart and Rose Smith; Layout Editors, Whitney House and Jennifer Dobbins; Business Editors, Christopher Kokinos, Kristine Rainge, and David Hedison. It is impossible for anyone to understand the dedication that these editors put into The 1988 Lion. To each of them I give my warmest and heartfelt thanks. Always remember, Guys — one pica between all elements, the infamous cropper, Mrs. Silva's homemade pizza, overlapping pictures, copy y and copy z.

Special appreciation is also extended to the advisors. To Mr. Frederick Donovan and Mrs. Mary Donovan, co-Business Advisors, thank you for organizing the financial support that allowed us to develop the biggest and best yearbook Chelmsford High School has ever produced. To Mrs. Janice Silva, Literary Advisor, thank you for standing by us, behind us, and ahead of us, for keeping us on the right track, and for always picking up the loose ends. Most of all, thank you for the care and dedication you gave to us and to the yearbook. What would we have done without you?

Enjoy The 1988 Lion, your history, your sword and stone.

Sincerely,
Rachana Srivastava
