With pride and pleasure, we extend to each of you our warmest, personal welcome to the sixty first edition of The 1987 Lion, the sparkling, shining centerpiece of Chelmsford's glittering tiara of family entertainment. This yearbook has come to town to dazzle and delight you forever, highlighting fond memories of thrilling high school moments. This season, feast your eyes on six rings full of exciting entertainment that will keep you laughing and gasping, on the edge of your seat for the entire performance. We invite you to share our happiness in presenting this unforgettable yearbook, your ticket to childhood for years to come.

Now, as we begin the show, we ask, because of the spectacular feats attempted in this display, please remain seated until the conclusion of the performance. Thank you, and may all your days be circus days.

BELIEVE AND WISH AND DREAM

Our celebration beyond time begins, a yearbook holiday,
Combining real and magic, the children lead the way!
The unbelievable, inconceivable — where fantasy is king,
The frontiers of CHS are passed, our fancies all take wing!
The Class of ’87 springs, the phenomenal, the best,
There’s teachers and the students, activities and all the rest!
Here come the super sports, and a friend whom you adore,
Splendiferous surprises arrive now by the score!
At last the crowning moment, a great new star in heaven,
Legend becomes reality, for here’s the Class of ’87!
Come join our celebration, your dreams will all come true,
Believe in us, believe and trust, as we believe in you.

EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED

Get this girl a muzzle!

Life is just a merry-go-round.

Can we get out now, Mrs. Silva?
Do you believe we are riding an elephant?

What we'll do for this yearbook!

Attack of the KILLER PURSES!

The things we have to do for this yearbook!

I think I can, I think I can, ...

Aren't we cute?
In the first ring, these lovely ladies and gallant gents were dressed in their daintiest duds to show you that the Class of 1987 really knows how to put on a show. Elegance, etiquette, and eloquent style were exhibited at this elaborate extravaganza. Chelmsford High School’s dining room was magically converted into New York City by Night, from 5th Avenue to Ellis Island, with all the splendor and excitement of the Big Apple. The Cotillion was a masterpiece of magnificence, a splendid success. There was dancing, dining, and delightful dallying done by all the dates and their darlings. As the evening came to an "alarming" close, everyone knew that May 24 had become a triumphant tingling of timeless treasures.
Modern Love. How's the New York Nightlife?

Howdy, Mike!

How many dates did you bring, Damon?

As the sun sets on New York Harbor you enter the New York nightlife...
"It's going to be a great senior year!"

"Is this how they dress in Spain?"

"Sue wears her sunglasses at night."

"It's senior year, gotta go nuts!"
The monarchs of madcap made their first appearance at the monumental Morp. Tickets were sold out; there was SRO on the dance floor. The attendants were prancing and parading to the music of the Mayburys. Dress was casual — people came in jeans, T-shirts, and even p.j.'s. Dancing quickly shifted into high gear with a crazy conga line. Then the Maybury's took us on a journey over the Atlantic as they played a few espléndidas songs to make the Spanish Exchange students feel at home. For everyone the dance was an overwhelming success. The student body was dazzled by the seniors' precisely, painstakingly planned-to-perfection party.
The Halloween Dance — a fabulous tidal wave of terrific tomfoollery featuring fun, frolic, and foolishness. It was an event where gags were made, where putty noses were carefully applied, and where laughs were born.

The art of creating laughter was a serious proposition for the Class of 1987 as they marched down Clown Alley. They dressed in those legendary laughmaker costumes. It was a time to show off the wild and crazy side of the seniors.

For those masters of mirth, comical charlatans, and celebrated captains of caprice, the full-fledged frantic foolishness had never been better.

Every year the Chelmsford High School Lion is dedicated to the person who has meant the most to the seniors during their four years of high school. This year, we, the Class of 1987, graciously present this honor to Bryan McAndrew. We thank you, Bryan, for your kind support and generous manner.

You have always been actively involved in our lives at CHS. Be it on the playing fields, in the locker rooms or at the awards ceremonies, you make all our acts fit together in a smooth, non-stop production.

Bryan, you have understood and happily accepted the challenge of guarding and guiding the students at CHS. You refuse to accept negative words like "can't" and "never." You make things happen even when it does seem impossible. From the children of all ages at Chelmsford High School, whose lives you have so profoundly touched, "Goodbye, Bryan, and thanks for making all the magic."
For thousands of years in the stories of many lands, the lions has been the "King of Beasts" The male lion, with his magnificent mane and terrifying roar, looks every inch a king. The lioness, with her keen senses and regal pace, looks every inch a queen.

At Chelmsford High School, the seniors have that same effect. They have earned the right to walk proud. Because this feline is so powerful, it has always been a challenge to people. Ancient kings and warriors tried their strength in capturing the lion. In ancient Rome, lions were made to fight other beasts and men in arenas. The lions were noted to always win their match. Well, the CHS Lions are carrying on that tradition — we have accepted and overcome our challengers!

Lions and lionesses work together in a close knit family called prides. A pride's territory is precious. It provides the best environment. As students, we came as cubs to CHS because it offered the best learning climate. As we grew, through our academics and our socializing, we bonded a pride of everlasting friendship.

Now it is time to leave. We feel sad in saying goodbye to each other. We are travelling to enter a new pride. But will we ever see each other again? No, not this same way. From now on, we have to choose our own seats and set our own schedules. We have to make our own rules and determine our own destinies. When we meet again, we will be "King of Beasts!" Instead of being trained we will be trainers; instead of being fearful, we will be fearsome.

We will be ruling our own lives with the dignity and majesty taught us. Thanks, CHS, for being the perfect pride for us Lions and Lionesses!

On a grand and glorious day, September 6, 1983, we boarded the train, beginning to lay a track of memories. We had already stopped at roadside spots such as Byam, Center, Harrington, North, South, and Westlands. Our galaxy of gifted students grouped at McCarthy for two years to prepare for the final extravaganza. When we were accomplished and assured, we traveled to Chelmsford High School to begin a four year engagement.

We fascinated our audiences with acts never before equalled. Our junior cotillion was comprehensively classic, held in "New York City," equipped even with the Statue of Liberty. Our fundraisers were cleverly calculated. Senior week — spellbounding!

The Class of 1987 has become famous for excellence in all areas of achievement. Our academic stars have placed us among the brightest in the state. Our acrobatic aces have brought home a cornucopia of championships. Our music and acting have received tuneful tributes. We have worked hard and it shows.

The appeal of our class has not been just its special shows under the big top, but the enthusiasm and spirit we have dispelled. No feat was ever too great. When crowds watched in amazement, popcorn halfway to their mouths, perched perilously in their seats, we accomplished the impossible with spirited fanfare.

Now our four years at Chelmsford High School have ended. We must go on the road again. We will meet the fresh challenge of each new season, armed with our creative talents.

The Class of 1987 has so many memories to take home; in fact, we've been mind-boggled. When we reminisce about this time of our lives, we will realize that we got more than expected. This we'll remember, and it will keep us coming back again and again.

THE LIONHEARTED
One of the more prestigious paradies presented this year was the Hawaiian Luau Dance. Conceived by the Class of '87, crowds of crazed characters covered the cafe. Yet this was not just another generic gathering of gregarious guys and gals.

The tremendous turnout displayed the required uniform. This varied from everyday beach attire to the most blinding Hawaiian shirts that ten dollars can buy. Along with the great music provided by some of our well known DJ’s, the energy radiated from these shirts kept the pace strong. The music ranged from contemporary songs to the all-time classic theme of Hawaii Five-O. Overcoming the depression with the absence of Dano’s cameo, the dance went on to the wee hours of the morning (or was it until the janitors kicked us out around 11:00?).

The dazed droves boisterously begged for more music. But our fatigued feet finally gave out, and the happy hundreds headed home.

Katy is saved by the lifeguards.

The Rockettes go Hawaiian.

Jim and Nicole look like tourists.

"I want your blood!" This line has been used since May, 1975, when CHS held its first bloodmobile. Well, 2,660 units of blood later, the Red Cross considers our bloodmobile the "finest." Participation and organization have contributed to our success. This past October, the Class of '87 donated 96 pints. Those who were unable to give blood gave time. Seniors typed medical forms, took temperatures, and held hands. Congratulations to all of us!

Look out Jackie, Russ is going to dr-r-r-ink your blood!

Audra is so happy about giving blood, right?

Patti is wondering, "Is this going to hurt?"

Seniors really have to give blood to graduate!
The Magazine Drive was a great senior fundraiser. It all started with a class assembly in the gym. The “rules” were explained as we played “The Price is Right.” By the end of the assembly the senior class was so pumped up that we started selling magazines to friends in our next class.

There were all types of competitions during the ten day drive. Money and prizes were awarded by faculty members as an incentive to keep selling. It sure did work because 85% of the senior class participated in the sale, raising a grand total of $43,000. The senior class receives $16,000 profit. We not only raised lots of money, but lots of school spirit. Both will give us the chance to hold very special events during senior week.
LAID BACK LIONS

What sly thoughts are you having, Paula?

Just me and my shadow!

You finally had a bright idea, Ian!

Putting the volleyball plays to music, Kris?
Of all the wild creatures in the world, none is more breathtaking and impressive in its beauty and strength than the tiger. This tawny-furred cat has uneven black stripes on its body, and black dots, dashes and lines on its face. It is so majestic in its dignity that it is often called "King of Beasts." Though it is the Lions at Chelmsford High School who have a stronghold on that position, the Tigers, the Class of 1988, are very distinguished and powerful.

The tigers are watchful. They like to keep informed. They walk many paths, making their presence known each time. Having sharp senses, they can find their way through any difficulty. Sensitive to each other and capable of making good judgements, they know just the right moves to make. The Chelmsford Tigers have shown these qualities to be true. They have carefully planned many novel ideas. They have sold unusual products and conducted original dances, each contributing to their success as a class. Even when their unique ideas were being discouraged by others, our tigers persevered. They never let down their guard or gave the appearance of weakness. They were so proficient in their preparations that they made danger look easy.

The big cats have been popular because of their gung-ho, trial-and-error method of learning. They are hard to scare or bluff. Their abundance of ability makes it easy for them to sidestep. They are never to be underestimated.

Roars of approval have come from their audience, cheers, whistles and applause. Take a couple of quick bows, Tigers, and prepare for center ring!

JOLLY, JABBERING JUNIORS

Stop having so much fun in the library. Serious only!

"Uh, let's see... how am I supposed to do this?"

"Aw Mom, do I have to wear this shirt?" asks Smiley.

Dave, you must look at the book to read it!

Erica, are you having fun with Physics?

Are you doing your English homework, Bill?

Well, Martha is doing her English homework!
Allie and Darcy say "Lean on Me!"

Anne-Marie thinks Tricia is doing it all wrong!

Are you guys going to eat all those Italian Pastries by yourselves?

O.K. raise your hands if you love the class of '88!

Jason says "Get off me!"

No hide and seek in the library, Nancy!
We're "sandwich" boys!

No public display of affection!

Straighten out your kickline girls.

Hey guys, nice locker!

Isn't one computer enough?
Bears are powerful animals. They can stand up to anything. The bedazzling bears, the Class of 1989, are ready and roaring to make this a honey of a year. Things are “brung” so fast that time for hibernation barely exists. Class members have worn down their paws with fruitful class activities. There has been no time to pause or refurbish.

The Class of ’89 will be patriotic and loyal to Chelmsford High School; no one will bury the bears. Fur flying, loud growling, and much roaring will occur as the lions make room for the mighty ’89 bruins in the CHS den. Though not the king of beasts, the bearish sophomores will bull their way forward, hold their own, and produce a successful year of fundraisers and dances. So, look out you Lions and Tigers — the sophomores have polarized their energies and lumbered into the fray of 1986/87 with all the enthusiasm of a den of grizzlies.

If you want my body . . .

SUPER SILLY SOPHOMORES
Oh, my! Oh, my! These are the words of the flabbergasted freshmen as they enter the prestigious portals to the Big Top's spectacular show. These young uns are constantly exposed to new experiences. They must cope with being the inexperienced trainees in a tent full of proficient professionals. Think back to your first day at CHS, freshman . . .

Oh, my, it's the first day of school. I've had nightmares about this day. Will the upperclassmen push me around? Will I get lost? What petrifying thoughts. I'm going to be sick!

Oh, my, here comes the bus. Can I sit anywhere? What if I accidentally take a senior's seat? Will he hit me? I'm going to turn around and go home. No, my parents will kill me. Oh, well, here goes!

Oh, my, I'm here. Which door do I go in? I'll just follow the crowd. Now do I go left or right? I'll ask someone. No, they'll think I'm a jerk. I'll go right. Whoops, a dead end. Left turn. This corridor goes on forever. I've been walking for ten minutes. Oh, no, I'm back where I started. Oh, good, there's a teacher. I'll ask directions. What if the teacher yells at me? I've got to ask or I'll walk in circles all day. Here goes!

Oh, my, I finally found my homeroom. But all these forms. Am I supposed to write first name first or last name first? Do I fill out both sides? In Pen or pencil? Print or write? I'll ask.

Oh, my, the bell rang. I have to find my mod 1/2 class. I wonder what a mod is. Where's my map? I stuck it in one of my notebooks. Let me look. Oh, no, there go all my books. Why is everybody kicking them down the corridor? Won't anyone help? Oh, well. Who needed those dumb books anyway. I'll tell my parents that the teachers collected them.

Oh, my, the bell rang again. Off to class I go. No problem, the room is in this corridor. The teacher looks mean, so I'll shut up and sit in the back while attendance is taken. All the A's are read off, the B's, the C's, now the D's. Hey, wait a minute, my last name begins with C. Why didn't the teacher call my name? I'll check my schedule . . . I'm supposed to be here. Now what do I do? Up goes my hand. Well, the teacher checked and I'm definitely not on the class list, so I've been told to go to the IDC, third door on the left, and talk to my guidance counselor. Okay, but what's an IDC?

Oh, my, there's a line at the counselor's office, so I'm supposed to come back tomorrow. It's off to my next class now. Problem . . . nothing is listed on my schedule. I'll ask a teacher what I should do . . . seems I have "free mods." I can go to Career Ed. IMG, Caf I or Caf II. I don't even know what these rooms mean, never mind try to find them.

Finally, it is 1:30 P.M. It has been the longest day of my life. At least I get to go home. Since I don't know my locker combination, there's no reason to go back there. I'll go right out to the bus and get a good seat. Oh, my, I forgot . . . which door did I come in?

Being freshman is something to smile about!

Test? Today?
For one magic moment on the Fourth of July, the nation paused for a burst of patriotic pride. The Statue of Liberty topped off her 100th birthday with a twenty-eight minute pyrotechnical nightcap. But in a year of turmoil, explosions often had a far more deadly significance. Terrorist attacks continued to lacerate Europe and the Middle East. The space shuttle Challenger was lost, and a nuclear reactor melted down. Meanwhile, people fought back against some familiar enemies. A war on drugs was declared. Millions joined Hands Across America to combat hunger, while 400 people marched in a nine month odyssey across the nation to protest nuclear proliferation. There were many other moments. Some were joyous, and some were regrettable, but all were unforgettable.

Perhaps the event that shocked America most in the past year was the Iran-Contra Connection. It took a Congressional sub-committee weeks to find some answers; still there were many questions. To what extent was President Reagan involved? Was it done in exchange for hostages? What facts are heads of state hiding by pleading the Fifth Amendment? Who else knew about the exchange before it took place? Will we ever know the answers?

In the past year, terrorism ran rampant. Hundreds were killed by terrorist bombs and bullets. Among others, teachers, priests, and envoys for peace were kidnapped, and sometimes killed. The Middle East and Europe became battlegrounds, with the enemy refusing to fight fairly and insisting on killing innocent civilians, even children.

On April 26, explosions ripped through the Soviet Union's Chernobyl nuclear Power plant, crippling one reactor and spreading radioactive material into the atmosphere. The accident, which occurred approximately seventy miles north of Kiev, was the worst in nuclear power's history. Thirty-one people were killed and 300 were injured from radiation and burns. In addition to the casualties, more than 155,000 people had to be evacuated, and the farm land around the reactor was rendered useless for decades. Soviet officials were strongly criticized for their secrecy and delay in reporting the disaster.

A day that will be remembered in the hearts of Americans for generations to come is January 28, 1986. On this day, due to a faulty O-ring, the space shuttle, Challenger, exploded seventy-two seconds after launching. The disaster left in its wake seven heroes: Michael Smith, Francis Scobee, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Christa McAuliffe, Gregory Jarvis, and Judith Resnik. Everyone will remember where they were.

Father Lawrence Jenko is freed after 19 months captivity in Beirut.

Many innocent Russian people are exposed to radiation as a result of the accident at Chernobyl.

President Reagan contemplates events in the Middle East.

Tough guy Clint Eastwood creates new image as Mayor of Carmel, California.
Five million Americans join hands to raise money for the nation's hungry.

America celebrates the Statue of Liberty's 200th birthday.

Friends bind together with handwoven friendship bracelets.

Halley's comet came for its obligatory visit every 75 years.

Four hundred people walked across the U.S. to protest nuclear weapons.
were when they heard the tragic news.

Although the year began in tragedy, midyear brought celebration. On July 4, U.S. citizens celebrated the signing of the Declaration of Independence and Lady Liberty's 100th birthday. Stars from around the nation performed in her honor. The festivities were topped off with a twenty-eight minute display of fireworks. Prior to the event, New York Mayor Ed Koch said, "It's going to be the party of the century. I invited the whole world." He was correct.

There were many joyful events throughout the year. Through perseverance and hard work, man proved that he can overcome difficult obstacles. For instance, it used to be unheard of for a plane to travel around the globe without needing to be refueled, but the Voyager did it. Little more than a gas tank with wings, it broke every distance record ever established. Thousands upon thousands of Americans showed their caring by joining hands from the East Coast to the West Coast in order to combat hunger with Hands Across America. Finally, hundreds showed their resolve against nuclear proliferation in a peace march up the West Coast.

The year in sports also included many dazzling victories and unexpected performances. Larry Bird led the Celtics to another expected, but nevertheless exciting, championship. The Patriots, while not burying the Bears, played admirable throughout the regular season and clinched the AFC championship. The Red Sox, with pitching sensation Roger Clemens and batting champ Wade Boggs, won the American League pennant. For the first time in its history, the Tour de France was won by an American. Greg LeMond completed the twenty-four day bicycle race before any of his European competitors. Most recently, Dennis Connor recaptured the America's Cup from the Australians. Captaining the Stars and Stripes to victory with a space-age keel design, he crushed the Australia's Kookaburra.

Sadly, the past year witnessed the deaths of two of America's greatest entertainers. Cary Grant, the handsome and talented actor, died at the age of 82. Liberace, the flamboyant piano player died from AIDS. The year also witnessed the rising of some new stars. Whitney Houston with her album "Whitney Houston" became a household name. Tom Cruise with his very good looks, became a national idol. Peter Gabriel showed his innovative musical genius with his album "So." And Clint Eastwood of "Dirty Harry" fame told Carmel to make his day. They did: they made him mayor.

This is a sketch of the world during our senior year. It is a time of speed, nuclear threat and economic uncertainty. In between, we have enjoyed many glimpses of triumphs. Still other events carry us to the exotic. Because of this year, we are much wiser than before.

"When you find something you really like to do and you're willing to risk the consequences of that, you... ought to go do it." — Astronaut Scurt
Greg LeMond put his metal to the pedal and was the first American to win the Tour de France bike race.

A message to the hometown boys — better luck next year!

Len Bias's dream came true to play for the Celtics; forty hours later cocaine took him away from them.

Dennis Connor's cup runneth home in America's Cup.

Up, up and around the world on a record-breaking odyssey with Voyager.
Christmas was coming and everybody was excited. There was joy in the air. Perhaps it was the thought of Santa's visit, or new clothes or that very wanted walkman. But more likely it was the excitement of the Christmas Dance — a formal gala, in center ring, under the Big Top.

On December 12th, 1986, the Caf II was transformed into a winter wonderland. Trees, tinsel and tiny lights adorned the room. The most popular spot was the "Kissin' Corner" where dates met under the mistletoe. And, of course, ol' St. Nick made a special visit to bear glad tidings and give candy canes to the good little girls and boys. (Did you get one?)

The Christmas Dance was a spectacle to remember. Everyone who was anyone was there; the luxurious lions, tantalizing tigers, beautiful bears, and, oh my, the freshmen came too. When the evening came to a close, we heard all exclaim, as they drove out of sight, "Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night!"
Tisk, tisk! No parties allowed in the classroom, Mr. Lang.

Well, um... I was just going to... um... to class...
Expert observers of the classroom scene will tell you that of all the maestros’ impressive, extraordinary skills, the single most amazing is their versatility. Name a student, any student, and chances are they'll teach him. Many tamer at Chelmsford High School have reached stardom by subduing the lions, the tigers, the bears and, oh my, the other crazy creatures.

Upon first entering, the student must become acquainted with the classroom. He must learn where his seat is. He must also become familiar with the kinds of materials from which he will be learning. He must be comfortable. Then, and only then, will instruction begin. That’s when the teacher starts taming the student from a state of native wildness to that of a mature, intellectual, domestic creature. Like most major accomplishments, this does not just happen. Ten months of diligent, continuous training is involved. By then, a friendship and a mutual trust has developed between the student and teachers. Learning has truly occurred.

Chelmsford High School tamer are dedicated to perpetuating the fine art of learning. They attract aspiring students to learn the secrets of the universe. Specialists train the students in all areas of life. The dramatic climax culminates when the students present their newly-acquired skills for their tamer.

Whether or not all dreams are fulfilled, to be an alumnus of Chelmsford High School is an honor and an experience each student will cherish for a lifetime. They will leave with a special knowledge of the time-honored traditions of learning from teachers who dedicate their lives to bring joy to others.

A last look at our forever beloved deans.
"Hurry, hurry, hurry! Step right up! For no charge at all, you too can see the high stepping colorguard, stomp to the marching bands, marvel at the brilliant national honor, and be awed by the daring skiers." The Barker of our big top invites all students to participate in the huge variety of sideshows offered at Chelmsford High School. They add pizazz to our main event.

At CHS, extra curricular activities provide more than just a change of pace. They are more than a side attraction. We choose our own activities. The selection is made according to individual interest. We can either try something new or improve on an old talent. How lucky can we be!

Activities are also important because they teach the students how to balance their time and set schedules. So many of us want to do everything, but we can't. So, in the process of selecting our activities, we have to sit down and figure out just how much time we have. We fit in our special interests accordingly. Prioritizing and scheduling are skills we will use for the rest of our lives. We learn to do this through the activities program.

Chelmsford High School offers a grand gallery of activities. Did you realize that there are forty clubs from which we can choose to join? There is certainly something for everyone, whether we like the indoors or outdoors. The appeal to the students is obviously satisfying.

The activities classrooms have been crowded all season as the students turned out in droves to participate in the extra features. These astonishing discoveries provided a truly unexpected experience. The splendor of the activities program merged with the shining reality of our daily lives to create each of us as unique individuals. Come join the fun!
THE LION is published in the spring of each year followed by a supplement in the fall. Students of all classes produce the yearbook by learning the techniques of photography, layout, editing, gathering copy, collecting advertising, and selling the book.

I HATE yearbook!!!!

The circus, a fun-filled extravaganza that travels from town to town, is known to pack in excited crowds, what is its secret? What draws in millions of fun seekers each year? The answer — the acrobats — those beautiful, yet strong and daring people who always steal the show. The same can be said for the athletes of Chelmsford High School. They perform the acrobatics in this case. They, too, travel from town to town and pull in large crowds wherever they go. No one misses the chance to cheer on the unbeatable Chelmsford Lions!

In the fall months Chelmsford's ladies, gentlemen, and children of all ages gather around to witness the flashy football players perform their majestic maneuvers on the field. There is no clowning around the soccer field as the fans become bedazzled by the players' fancy footwork. Excellent hand-eye coordination and supreme strength is what attracts the fans to the girls and boys volleyball games. Assisting to the command performances, the golf teams show some stunning shots. The cross-country teams are Chelmsford's "longest running" attractions, while the girls field hockey team show it's skills and thrills. And last but not least, the girls swimming team shows an elaborate enigma of agile artistry. The fall athletes have achieved their goal — devastate, disorient, and defeat the opponent.

During the winter months the tents go up again for swift swimming stars, this time masculine. Hockey moves off the field and onto the ice. Our wrestling Lions allow no room for monkey or equipoise — our graceful gymnasts and our daredevil track athletes provide exemplary episodes of eloquence.

Springtime brings our stars outdoors. Tracksters run their events in the wide open spaces. Love is in the air for our tennis teams. The baseball and softball players are super swingers. And cheerleaders continue their performance of intricate stunts.

No, our basketball players do not ride unicycles on the court, our gymnasts do not wear sequins, and our swimmers are not synchronized. But our athletes always attract huge crowds as they perform in Chelmsford High School's center ring.
FOOTBALL

Senior Mike Marshall takes control.

Bottoms up, Andy!
"You want me to do what, Coach?"

"Ice Cream!" "Peanuts!" "Hot Dogs!" "Popcorn!" "Cola!" What would the circus be without vendors? How many of us go to the circus just to see the lions, the tigers and the bears? No one! Sure, everyone wants to see the main event, but without the extras, audience members could not have as good a time.

Chelmsford has vendors, too. We have our share of big businesses, but the small shops are what make us unique. Specialty shops satisfy interests that we’ve come to need. What would we do without these places? If we closed the grocery stores, where would we buy food? If we shut down restaurants, what would we do when Mom goes on a trip? If we locked up the little shops, where would we get birthday presents? The students need these businesses, they give our town character. When they advertise with The Lion, it is their way of inviting the Chelmsford residents to enjoy the extras. "Ice Cream!" "Popcorn!" "Candy!" "Dentists!"

The Lion has always been grateful to community business for their contributions to the yearbook and to the town. This year, parent participation has been added to our list of vendors. For the first time, parents were invited to write messages to their seniors. The response was overwhelming. We love you, too, Mom and Dad.

It costs thousands and thousands of dollars to publish a yearbook. The staff had to beg a lot of sponsors and sell a lot of gummy bears. Much thanks to Mom, Dad, local business and students. We’re very grateful. Now it’s our turn to support you.
To Gary Abernathy:
May all your dreams come true.
You’ve done a great job, keep it up.

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. John T. Conrad was a dedicated educator and family man. He was a professional who was greatly respected by all who knew and worked with him.

As Principal of Chelmsford High School from 1950 to 1972, Mr. Conrad devoted his time and his effort to the children of this town. He did so with great pleasure. His enthusiasm and positive influence as an educator have been clearly recognized through the academic and athletic success of his students and the acknowledgements of his peers. He dedicated himself to assuring that Chelmsford students had the best opportunities to prepare for their futures. And because of his interest in the students’ physical well-being, he encouraged participation in athletics. Recognizing Mr. Conrad’s patronage in this area of student development, the present Chelmsford High School Gymnasium was dedicated in his honor.

Mr. Conrad will always be remembered for his kind and friendly professionalism. He opened his office and his heart to the children and parents of Chelmsford High School.

If a man’s life is measured by how many people he touches during his lifetime, then Mr. John T. Conrad’s life was immeasurable.
IN MEMORIAM

Mr. Bruce N. Freeman was a kind and decent loving individual, who lived every day and was loved by all. He was a professional in every sense of the word, and showed integrity and honesty in his job performance.

Representative Freeman's devotion to the Town of Chelmsford was well-documented, but it was his devotion to the individual for which he will be most remembered. He was a friend to many, and most of all he will be remembered as a decent man who genuinely cared about people.

Representative Freeman was a gentle, considerate and concerned individual and a caring legislator. He cared about young people and how government affected them. He believed the American youth is our most vital resource and for many of our young people, civic accomplishments and a balanced sense of patriotism still exists. He knew that the youth of this country is our hope for the future.

It has been said that a man's life is often measured by how many people he touches during his lifetime. If that is true, then Bruce N. Freeman's life was immeasurable.

So, tell me, what's up?

Come on, Becky, back to the keyboard!

Come on, girls, don't let those guys get you down!

Just friends, Michelle and George?
Thanks, Lion, for writing our memoirs, ...

As September 4, 1986 became the present, 570 twelfth graders entered Chelmsford High School for the first day of school. But this year was different. We were seniors today. And this was our last first day. Against a background of scrambling underclassmen, the senior strut — a slow, casual saunter which exudes confidence with every step — showed that the Class of 1987 was relaxed, self-assured and ready to rule.

We knew every nook and cranny of the building, so finding our way was no problem. We had already selected our classes and knew all the teachers, so academics were old ...

What evil things are you thinking of George?

Let us in on the joke, Colleen.

Aren't we the cutest girls in the whole entire school?
Melody Man

Ian, you finally had a bright idea!
Brian and Melanie are thinking about their Doritos!

Great friends at CHS

Jim says "Hey! Are you taking a picture of me?"

What a Motley Crue

Chef Jeff says "Anybody want some lunch?"

. . . for insuring that the laughter of . . .

. . . hat. (But a top hat this time) Sure we'd be learning lots of new material this year, but there was great comfort in knowing the routine!

The first event on our social calendar was the Morp. There was tremendous energy and excitement generated during our backwards prom. It was clearly a foreshadow of the fun to be.

Next was the magazine drive. Can you believe that the Class of 1987 broke all records? The seniors sold over $40,000 worth of subscriptions. Cases of class mugs, Brewster Bears, and '87 blankets were distributed to those seniors who went the extra measure to support the class. Awed by the results, organizers of the drive said that years of future classes will strive to reach the mark we’ve set. Once again we proved that we do things up big!

Come October, we shed our Levi’s and Bennettons for outfits with a little more pizzaz. We really went wild at our Halloween Dance. Creativity shone bright. Arrayed in togas of ancient Rome to the tinsel of the future, there were no generation gaps in our ability to communicate with one another. The cafe was filled with familiar faces, which made the night even more special . . .
"Hey, Mom, can I keep him?"

Coleen, you look Mah-vel-ous!

Now, MaryBeth you really look marvelous

"We want you!"
It took no time for us to change clothes and rip down crepe paper. Girls were in satin dresses of holiday reds, whites and greens. The boys were full of decorum in their suits and ties. (Yes, ties — and on page 122/123 we have pictures to prove it.) Holiday spirit was in the air as we turned Cafe II into a Winter Wonderland. We wished we could have captured the night's magic for a lifetime. This would be the last New Year we'd hail in together. Happy New Year classmates, now and forever.

After the celebrating had quieted, we had to deal with a serious senior pressure. Where will we be next year? Work? College? What job? Which college? We wrote resumes — over and over again! We shared with complete strangers; the Deans of Admissions; our innermost thoughts. Whom do we most love? Hate? Whom do we admire? Disrespect? What is the single most important event that has ever happened in our lives? What makes us happy? Sad? We were having convulsions of the mind! But it's done. We're off to the jobs and colleges of our choice, and the choice is ours thanks to the preparation we received at Chelmsford High School.

Once we got up from our desks, it was time to party again. The Hawaiian Luau was the perfect opportunity. We were skimpy on dress, but certainly not on color and fun. Our resident dance hall, Cafe II, provided plenty of atmosphere. Who needs the wind and surf to have a terrific Beach Party?

Since our class was so full of energy and had so much to give, we invited the Red Cross to make a house call. Those who qualified to donate blood, did! Those who couldn't, did, too — in preparation and organization. The Bloodmobile was a wonderful success. We were proud of each other when we realized that our 200 pints of blood would save lives of those less fortunate than ourselves.

After a slow rise from the gurney, we brought our dizziness to the McCarthy stage where the seniors displayed their "talent". What laughs! The audience was rolling in the aisles. Such nerve those seniors have to call this a talent show. Actually, it was rumored that the Class of '87 was asked to take the show on the road... or was it "hit the road"?

Packed into the midst of our senior agenda was a new dance Senior Aid. It was held at Alumni Stadium. Those shakes weren't tremors — just those seniors having a good time — together, again. Proceeds from Senior Aid helped defray the cost of Senior Week.

Senior Week — how does one verbalize a feeling? We will reminisce about this week when we meet at next year's Thanksgiving Day football game. We'll exchange knee-slapping stories about it at our fifth year reunion. In ten years, we'll share laughs. At our twentieth year reunion, when our temples are gray and our tummies aren't so flat, someone will ask, "Do you remember when...?" We'll lean back in our chairs, tilt our heads, give an unconscious smile. There will be silence. We'll say to ourselves, "Yes, as if it were yesterday."

We had done it all. We put on the perfect three ring circus. We worked, we studied, we played. And we did it with great success. Now our closest family and friends gathered to pay us tribute. They gave us beautiful gifts: luggage, watches, pearls. But the tears didn't come until they were playing our song. You know, that awful song. Or is it wonderful? We're not sure. But it did make us cry. Our guests stood. We couldn't delay any longer. We marched slowly — Dickinson, Emerson, Hawthorne, Whittier — to Pomp and Circumstance. Was this an end or a beginning? How could we be so happy and so sad at the same time? Aren't you proud? Aren't you scared? The only thing for sure is that we had to hug and kiss and cry. Congratulations, Class of 1987! You did it with style!
WE MADE IT! Page 240, the last page of our last year at Chelmsford High School. Within this yearbook, we have summarized through words and pictures one year in the life of Chelmsford High School, one year in your life. For seniors it is now time to move on to a different audience in another Big Top; for underclassmen, it is time to move into a larger ring.

As you look at each picture in The 1987 Lion, realize that every photo had to be taken and layed out on the page. A caption was thought of, all artwork had to be drawn, and every composition was written. You might ask, “Who did all this work?” The dedicated group of editors are responsible for your fantastic yearbook. Sonia Leach and Wendy Rourke worked on weekend nights and vacation mornings. They helped make important decisions as well as participating with the actual production. Martha MacLeod, Gary Abernathy, Shawn DeVeau, and Jim Ropp counted money, layed out business pages, and kept track of the index pages. Elisabeth Rainge and Jane Egan collected pictures of every club and the membership lists. Alana Sorocco and Sue Smith did layout while Karyn Cotroneo typed copy. Nikki Kokinos took pictures of every underclass homeroom. Karen Johnson and Elisa Simonian compiled sports teams’ scores and team member lists. Tim Cook snapped and developed hundreds of photos. Anne Benoit (who drew our beautiful cover) and Alan Roach did the artwork. I give my heartfelt thanks to all of them, I also want to thank Mrs. Silva, our advisor, who guided us through everything, who listened to our complaints, who stayed up nights helping us meet deadlines and who took the blame for any decision that skeptical readers did not like.
